DNIEPER BATTLE BEGINS

GERMANS 75 MILES FROM LENINGRAD

MARSHAL BUDYENNY is fighting stubborn rearguard actions against German columns thrusting towards the wide, fast-flowing Dnieper, which bars the way to the industrial wealth of the Don Basin.

In Berlin a High Command spokesman claimed last night that infantry units, making forced marches, had already reached the river 80 miles east of Krivoi Rog, and were advancing towards Dniepropetrovsk, which is 140 miles from the Black Sea.

As Soviet troops west of the Dnieper bend fall back, defences on the opposite side of the river are being strengthened.

After the renewal of the Germans' Baltic drive, the Russian communiqué this morning announced the evacuation of the town of Kingisepp, which is 15 miles east of Narva and 75 miles to the south-west of Leningrad.

PROBLEM OF ODESSA

It was learned in London yesterday that the Germans, renewing their drive against Leningrad, are trying to push their way through on the axis of the railway from Tallinn, the strongly-held Russian base on the Gulf of Finland, towards the Soviet city, defended by Marshal Voroshilov. There is no news to show how far this new attack has developed, and it is early yet to say whether it is a serious threat or not.

Claiming that German infantry units, making forced marches, reached the Dnieper river on Sunday morning, the German News Agency last night said that they had tank and artillery support.

Small Soviet rearguards which attempted to hold them off were overwhelmed," the Agency added. German guns are now stated to command a stretch of the river, preventing the withdrawal of Soviet troops.

The Agency also claims that the "remnants" of four Soviet infantry divisions were wiped out by a German pincer movement in the Nikolaiev area on Sunday. The Soviet troops, it says, were trying to break through to a road in German hands. A last stand is said to have been made along a railway embankment, which was piled with Russian dead.

The report makes no mention of any Russian prisoners having been taken.

AT THE RIVER

The German High Command spokesman said last night that German troops, after "mopping up" at Krivoirog, had reached the Dnieper River, eighty miles to the east, and were advancing towards the great Soviet industrial city of Dniepropetrovsk.

The Press Association says that in the Ukraine the German troops will find a formidable obstacle to any further advance in the Dnieper River. The next few days should disclose the success of the Red Army operations on this Southern front.

Odessa, 75 miles south-west of evacuated Nikolaiev, on the Black Sea coast, is still in Russian hands, but at present there is no indication whether it is intended to hold on to it as a base from which to harry the German right flank.

The loss of Nikolaiev—one of the Soviet's principal ports on this coast—and Krivoirog undoubtedly represents two serious setbacks, says Alexander Werth, Reuter's Special Correspondent in Moscow.

The blowing up of the port installations and docks before Nikolaiev was abandoned is an illustration of the thoroughness with which Stalin's "scorched earth" policy of leaving nothing for the Germans was applied. Normally large stocks are kept at Nikolaiev when the Ukrainian harvest is gathered, but it is doubtful whether much was sent there this year in view of the threat to the town. Any grain reserves there were presumably dealt with the same way as the docks.

ORE LOSSES

The German claim that with the loss of Krivoirog the Soviets are deprived of their most important source of iron ore outside the Urals is greatly exaggerated, Reuter's Correspondent adds. The iron ore belt not only extends eastward to the Dnieper, but well beyond, and the fact is that Soviet losses cannot so far exceed a quarter of what the Germans claim.

The evacuation of Nikolaiev was inevitable if the Russians felt obliged to straighten out their line after the fall of Krivoirog with a view to basing a solid defence line on the Dnieper bend. Though the Russians can be relied on to fight for every inch of the valuable industrial country west of the river, they may be faced with the dilemma of suffering great military losses, or abandoning what is a valuable, but not indispensable, area.

It is an unpleasant dilemma, continues Werth, but clearly the Soviet Command will prefer to preserve their fighting strength while extending German communications. The indefinite postponement of a decisive German success is an essential factor.

Yesterday's German High Command communiqué spoke of the continued pursuit of the "defeated enemy, who are partly retreating in panic towards the Lower Dnieper."

BERLIN OPINION

The Berlin correspondent of the Gazette De Lausanne refers to "mitigated optimism" in Berlin, and talks of the "last week as partly good and partly bad." "The importance of the partial success in the Ukraine cannot be estimated, because it is completely dependent on forthcoming operations," he says. "It has been a bad week if one considers that the Smolensk and Leningrad sectors have remained stable, especially since the Germans are obliged to race against winter."

The official German News Agency reports heavy hand-to-hand fighting on some points of the central front—where the Germans are known to be digging in around Smolensk—yesterday, attributing this to efforts of the Soviet troops to "extricate themselves from approaching encirclement and to hold up the German advance." Soviet soldiers killed, it is claimed, far exceed the number taken prisoner.

Meanwhile in Moscow it is realised that the war is entering the difficult August phase that was generally anticipated.

FINNISH CLAIM

A Finnish communiqué claims that on Sunday on Lake Ladoga a Soviet water 'plane and a fighter were shot down, while Finnish anti-aircraft defences shot down another 'plane. "Eight hundred and fifty Russian soldiers were killed and 700 prisoners were taken, in the advance of German-Finnish forces on August 17th," the communiqué said.

The German News Agency claims that 90 Soviet 'planes were destroyed on Sunday, 32 of them on the ground. The loss of only five German 'planes is admitted.

Stockholm reports to Rome last night claimed that German troops advancing on both sides of Lake Peipus on the Estonian frontier have joined forces to the north. The Russians in Estonia, it is stated, are thus cut off by the presence of German troops in the 30 miles wide neck of land between the lake and the Baltic.

The Hungarian High Command communiqué last night said that "since August 8 our troops advanced 120-150 miles along the River Bug to take part with the German forces in the battle round Nikolaiev. Our motor-cyclists caused heavy losses to an enemy superior in numbers, who fought fiercely, while our cavalry checked all his efforts to break out. We took several thousand prisoners and considerable booty."

NEW TACTICS

A despatch to the Moscow newspaper Pravda reports that new tactics are being used by the Russians, who are sending mobile forces on raids deep into the German rear.

The despatch says that one regiment, supported by artillery and tanks, slipped the German rear and wrecked a German motorised column of several hundred machines, surrounded the village and headquarters staff of the German 126th Division, captured three officers and seized many documents and maps. In a final encounter the regiment killed over 500 Germans and seized much material before dispersing German horse artillery returning to its base.

One "lost" regiment was reported to have rejoined their comrades at the front after a fortnight's forest campaign, in which the Russians killed 1,500 men of a German Tank Brigade. The regiment was reported to have made simultaneous frontal and rear attacks on the brigade, which was manned by cadets recently arrived at the front.

Swiss wireless reported from Budapest last night that a Soviet bomber dropped ten bombs on the Hungarian town of Komarom yesterday. No considerable damage was done, the report added.

The Russian communiqué this morning said that during August 17 twenty-two German 'planes were brought down in air combat for the loss of eighteen 'planes. According to precise data now available, in the course of air combat on August 16 twenty-five German 'planes were brought down, not nineteen, as previously reported. In the Baltic Sea Russian torpedo boats sank a German submarine and two German transports.

ODESSA BOMBED

"German bombers to-day again attacked Odessa with great success," stated the German News Agency last night. "Six transports, totalling 15,000 tons, were seriously hit. A cruiser and a torpedo boat were also badly damaged."

BRITISH BOMBERS ACTIVE

ATTACKS ON GERMAN AND ITALIAN OBJECTIVES

BRITISH Blenheims yesterday afternoon bombed an industrial target at Lille.

Large fires are said to have been caused by Sunday night's attacks on Duisburg and Bremen.

From the Middle East the Royal Air Force announces destructive raids on Syracuse and Cap Passaro, in Sicily.

FIRES AT BREMEN AND DUISBURG

Yesterday's Air Ministry communiqué stated:—

"Though the weather was again unfavourable, a force of over 100 aircraft of the Bomber Command on Sunday night carried out attacks on West and North-West Germany.

"The main objectives were the port of Bremen and industrial districts at Duisburg. Many large fires were started.

"One of our bombers is missing."

NIGHT ATTACK ON HULL

A few scraps of metal amid some ashes were all that remained of a German 'plane brought down in flames during a short attack on Hull on Sunday night. The heat and the explosion of bombs and machine-gun ammunition made it impossible to save the five occupants of the 'plane.

Nine people were killed at Hull and others were seriously injured.

There were no daylight raids on Britain yesterday.

MIDDLE EAST CAMPAIGN

Yesterday's communiqué from the Royal Air Force Headquarters, Middle East, was as follows:—

"Sicily.—Aircraft of the Fleet Air Arm carried out a successful attack on the harbour of Syracuse during the night of August 16-17. Bombs were dropped from a low altitude on the central mole and railway sidings, starting several fires, which finally became one intense blaze, with the flames rising to three hundred feet. A number of violent explosions accompanied the fire, which lit up the whole of the harbour area. Considerable damage must have been done to shipping.

"The same formation dropped a number of incendiary bombs on barracks at Cap Passaro. These caused a heavy detonation, followed by a fire which was still visible from our aircraft when about 70 miles away on their homeward journey.

"Hurricane fighters machine-gunned seaplanes in the harbour of Syracuse yesterday, and destroyed one Cant 2,506, and severely damaged a number of others.

"Abyssinia—Aircraft of the South African Air Force bombed and machine-gunned Wolchafit and Debareck, and obtained hits on forts, buildings and trenches.

All our aircraft returned safely from the above operations."

GERMANS SHELL BRITISH CONVOY

The German wireless last night claimed that long-range batteries on Sunday shelled and dispersed a British convoy off Dover.—(Associated Press.)

TRINITY COLLEGE APPOINTMENTS

PROFESSOR ALTON AS VICE-PROVOST

THE "Irish Times" learned yesterday that Senator Professor Ernest Henry Alton, M.A., Litt.D., will act as Vice-Provost of Trinity College, Dublin, in place of the late Dr. W. A. Goligher, until the Board meets to appoint a permanent successor on October 1st.

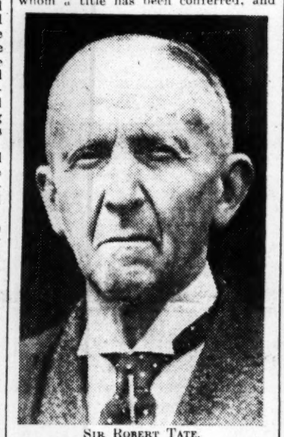

Professor Alton is the present Registrar, and his position will be filled temporarily by the Rev. Robert Malcolm Gwynn, M.A., B.D., Senior Proctor. The temporary Senior Proctor will be Sir Robert Tate, K.B.E., M.A., who was yesterday co-opted a Senior Fellow to succeed Dr Goligher.

PROFESSOR ALTON.

Sir Robert Tate was originally a Classical Scholar in Cambridge University, but in 1903 he took an ad eundem degree in Trinity. Three years later he went up for a Fellowship for the first time, and in 1907 he won the Madden Prize. In the following year he became a Fellow.

He is the only Junior Fellow upon whom a title has been conferred, and he is also the only Junior Fellow who has ever declined a Senior Fellowship (which he did some years ago on the death of Mr. Robert Russell), preferring to remain upon the lecturing staff. He is the only non-graduate of Dublin University on record who ever obtained a Fellowship of Trinity College by the old system of competitive examination.

SIR ROBERT TATE.

U.S. CHIEFS IN CONFERENCE

KEY MEN MEET THE PRESIDENT

FROM REUTER'S CORRESPONDENT.

WASHINGTON, Monday.

President Roosevelt to-day summoned to the White House key men in Congress connected with foreign affairs to give them a full account of the international situation. The President gave the Congressmen a ninety-minute picture of his talk with Mr. Churchill, and discussed a further lease-lend appropriation.

The Senate Democratic leader, Alben Barkley, said that the conference was very interesting, but secret. He said that the Japanese situation was mentioned only casually, and there was "nothing very definite in it."

Mr. Cordell Hull, the Secretary of State, said that Japan had given no satisfactory explanation for refusing to permit one hundred private American citizens to leave Japan. The matter was still under discussion between Mr Joseph Grew, United States Ambassador to Japan, and Admiral Toyoda, Japanese Foreign Minister.

Senator Connally, Chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, predicted that Congress would be asked to appropriate £1,000,000,000 for additional assistance under the Lease-Lend Bill "if, and when, the money is needed."

The President signed legislation to relieve men of 28 years and older from active military duty under the Selective Service Act.

Other Congressional leaders said that they had gained the impression from President Roosevelt that Russia had a real chance of resisting indefinitely, and that Russian resistance would probably forestall any German attempt to invade Britain this year.

Other informants reported that President Roosevelt said that Russia was making an effective fight, and her withdrawal from various sectors did not indicate that a German victory was imminent. He indicated that no British invasion of the Continent was contemplated at present, but one of the group said that the British authorities were convinced that such a move must be made eventually to defeat Germany.

FOOD KITCHENS FOR DUBLIN?

Food and Fuel Discussed in Government Buildings

THE necessity for providing Dublin City with community kitchens during the coming winter, to offset privation caused by lack of fuel, the serious character of the fuel problem, and the difficulty of overcoming the incapacity of transport in that connection, were among points discussed at a conference, in Government Buildings yesterday, between representatives of the Government and the Dublin Corporation.

It was revealed that available transport can deal with 500 tons of fuel per day, and that this amount is roughly one-fifth of Dublin's requirements.

In connection with the discussion on community kitchens, the conference considered a plan produced by a Dublin meal-producing and catering expert for the provision of 50,000 meals per day during the coming winter.

The idea also was mooted of the establishment of food kitchens in each of the technical schools in the city, and reference was made to the information collected recently by the Dublin Board of Assistance relating to the available accommodation in various city halls for the provision of meals.

On the Government side, the Taoiseach and the Minister for Local Government and Public Health talked with the following members of the Dublin Corporation, who were introduced by the Lord Mayor (Alderman P. S. Doyle, T.D.):—Mr. P. Belton, T.D.; Mr. A. Byrne, T.D.; Mr. E. Cooney, T.D.; Dr. J. Hannigan, T.D.; Messrs. M. O'Sullivan, John MacCabe, Joseph Kiernan, John Coghlan, Patrick J. Cahill and Mrs. K. Nix.

FOOD DISTRIBUTION

It is understood that the necessity for some scheme of food distribution in the city during the coming winter, in view of the probable scarcity of fuel, was agreed, and that the conference discussed the most practical schemes by which relief could be attained. In this connection the work of the existing community kitchens and the various charitable societies was not overlooked, and the difficulty in the way of co-ordinating these efforts with a large-scale municipal plan received consideration.

One plan which came in for consideration was that of Captain Frank Stearn, food steward of the Grangegorman and Portrane Mental Hospitals, and the brains behind the catering organisation in Dublin during the Eucharistic Congress. Captain Stearn has produced a plan at the request of the City Manager for the production of 25,000 meals per day during an emergency period. This scheme, which rapidly can be expanded to provide 50,000 meals daily, would take, roughly, three months to organise, and the initial cost—that is, for preliminary work—would in the case of 25,000 meals, be between five and six thousand pounds, and little more than eight thousand pounds in its expanded form.

Discussing the undertaking with an Irish Times reporter last night, Captain Stearn said:—"I am not a bit scared of the job; it would run itself after a week."

SIXPENCE A MEAL

Not merely would Captain Stearn produce a stew meal for every one of 25,000 people every day at a production cost of 6d. per head, but he would vary the meal once every five days with a change-over to brown stew and roasted potatoes, and in the case of the larger number he would vary it once every two days.

"I could give them a stew meal which would cost 3d. per head," he said, "but it would be a 'perhaps' meal—perhaps meat, and perhaps not. The least it would cost to produce a meal which would keep a man's body and soul together for a day would be 6d., and at that I would be including a farthing per head for repayment of principal, and interest on the original capital outlay."

The meal envisaged by Captain Stearn is one of 5 ozs. of meat and a pound of potatoes, with sufficient condiment to produce the necessary extra vitamins.

FIELD KITCHENS

The general idea behind Captain Stearn's mind is the erection of a number of field kitchens and ovens—the material, he says, is available—supplementary to the cooking apparatus in two well-known large Dublin institutions. He would erect his kitchens and ovens with labour paid at trade union rates, still remaining within the initial cost figures, and would pay his cooks, assistants, checkers, and any other labour that might be involved, as well as covering the cost of the raw materials, at the rate of 6d. per meal. It also would include the cost of six tons of turf and timber per day.

"When I was approached about this thing," he said, "I sat down for five days and worked out the costs to the last penny, and in doing it I made allowance for variations in the cost of foodstuffs. The only costs that I did not consider are those of distribution."

USE OF HALLS

On the question of the distribution of the food, Captain Stearn was equally resourceful. "There is no doubt," he said, "it would have to be brought into the city centre and distributed to the people in various halls, where there would be sufficient accommodation to enable a fairly large number to take the meal at the one time. If I had my way, I would bring it in in milk churns, thereby ensuring that it would remain hot for a considerable time. Transport? What is wrong with using the transport that is being utilised by the Corporation for other purposes, such as the free milk scheme—that transport is not being used all day long every day?"

Captain Stearn envisages voluntary labour in the distribution of the food; thinks there is no reason why it could not be done voluntarily with a little effort; points to the employment the kitchens would provide; and lastly, and with justifiable pride, asserts that there would be no "stigma" of charity about it—every man would be paying for his food—white, black, or no collar at all. "By mid-winter," he added, "many of us who might not think of 'descending' to it now, might be glad of good, nourishing food. For myself, I never have refused such a meal."

TO POOL RAW MATERIALS

HOPE OF LABOUR MINISTER

MR. ERNEST BEVIN, the British Minister of Labour, told the Transport and General Workers' Union Conference, at Llandudno yesterday, that he believed the democracies would play a rôle no one had yet conceived in the future organisation of the world. Raw materials must no longer be a scramble for speculation; he would pool them.

The Government, he said, was considering the fairly wide development of rationing.

Mr. Bevin said that the issue of the war was the freedom of mankind and his right to advancement and social security. No peace could be built and nothing could be done until Prussianism was disarmed. Britain, the United States, and who they knew as western civilisation could not survive, except upon a basis of liberty and equality among all the peoples of the world. If British civilisation was to survive they could not go on with a propertyless proletariat.

BRASS HATS

Referring to the Army, he said it was easy to talk about the Generals being Brass Hats. He hoped they would not only have social security at the end of this war, but a social obligation. He still believed in a citizen army and a democratic army, and that it was a social obligation to defend their own homesteads. The Army must never again, in its organisation, be allowed to be destroyed as it was after 1918. The Labour attitude to the problem of defence would have to be re-examined, not for the purpose of their own country, but for the purpose of maintining international discipline if they got anything like a world order established.

PRICE AND WAGES

The old outlook had been defence on the cheap. He could not believe that industry could, at the end of this war, go back to the methods employed before it. Picking up labour like an old cloak, and then throwing it down again was an inhuman procedure. He wanted every avenue in industry open to every man and woman. That was a right and the State needed it. He refused to be a party to the stabilisation of wages until the price policy was settled. The difference in the situation now was that the Government had decided to stabilise prices. Experience had shown that wages followed prices but a long way behind. The Government was considering a fairly wide development of rationing, not merely to control prices, but in order to get a correct distribution. The trade union movement had asked for stabilisation, and the Government had given it.

On the Churchill-Roosevelt statement Mr. Bevin said that Britain could not go on fighting a war of this character without stating her objective. It was clear that Europe, as they had known it, could never hold the predominant place it had held hitherto. "It looks to me as if those dealing with primary products are going to have a greater say in future in world affairs than they have hitherto had. I believe that the British Commonwealth, China, the United States and Russia will probably play a rôle that no one up till now had ever conceived in the future organisation of the world.

"I think that what applies to raw materials will apply largely to certain primary foods. They must no longer be the prerogative and scramble of speculation. They must be organised.

RAW MATERIALS

"If I had my way I would introduce for the raw materials of the world something in the nature of a postage stamp principle. I would pool them internationally—pool the freights, and make a charge for their use, with international control. I believe this would relieve some of the primary causes of this international struggle. I can only hope that the Roosevelt-Churchill statement means not only free access to raw materials but the working out of a system whereby these great basic materials will be free to mankind on equal terms. Gold can no longer give us international stability. I believe that, as a result of our poverty at the end of this war, we shall all be broke, and I shall then be able to call you comrades and friends."

GRAIN PRICES

NEW EMERGENCY ORDER

A new Emergency Order made by the Minister for Agriculture regulates the purchase and disposal of the 1941 cereal crops, and fixes prices to be paid to growers by licensed dealers, and also the prices at which the dealers must sell the grain purchased by them. These prices are set out in an advertisement elsewhere in to-day's paper.

The Order further provides that licensed dealers may not sell or dispose of grain, except in accordance with directions given by the Minister, either directly or through the Cereals Distribution Committee set up by him.

It is provided also that persons proposing to assemble stocks of wheat, barley, oats or rye for sale as seed must apply to the Minister for permits, and if permits are granted, such persons must not dispose of grain otherwise than by sale as seed, save as directed by the Minister.

Apart from the classes of persons mentioned, the only members of the public who may purchase garin from growers without special authority are farmers who buy grain from other farmers for sowing on their own lands; farmers and other persons having animals under their management and purchasing barley or oats for feeding of such animals, and shopkeepers who buy oats in small quantities (not exceeding 5 cwt. at any one time) for sale by retail.

Breaches of the Order, it is pointed out, may be punished by fine or imprisonment, or by both.

Five Dead in New York Fire

Many Explosions at the Docks

AT least five people were killed and over 50 injured, some of them, it is feared, fatally, in the dock fire, which was accompanied by explosions, on the East River, near Brooklyn Bridge, New York. Lower Manhattan was shaken by the explosions, and the fire destroyed two piers, including one which had been used for loading supplies for Britain and Egypt, while the American freighter, Panuco, was gutted. Police are investigating the possibility of sabotage, says the Associated Press.

Thunderous explosions echoed from flaming barges moored in the East River, near the famous Brooklyn Bridge. The fire started at the Cuba Mail Line Pier, Number 27, which was destroyed, and, although firemen fought doggedly to prevent its spread to Pier 26, where supplies for Britain are loaded, that too was rapidly eaten up.

The fire set an American freighter and several laden barges aflame. The American freighter, Panuco, laden with quicksilver, minerals and hemp, burst into flames. She was cut loose and drifted off ablaze from stem to stern. Observers described how a flaming barge, also cast adrift, was floating crazily down river, while fire boats threw tons of water on to it, says Reuter.

The outbreak began with a series of explosions, which sent up flames 120 feet high. These apparently started from a number of heavily laden barges.

The damage was estimated at £375,000.

MR. CHURCHILL HOME AGAIN

SPECIAL ACCOUNT OF VOYAGE

MR. CHURCHILL is home from his meetings with President Roosevelt "somewhere at sea."

The Press Association learns that he will arrive in London this morning.

When he arrived with his party yesterday it became known that Britain's newest battleship, the Prince of Wales, conveyed him both to and from the secret meeting-place.

Reuter's Special Correspondent with the Royal Navy, writing yesterday from aboard a British destroyer, said:

I was on board one of the British destroyers which formed the escort on the homeward trip, but never once did we sight any hostile craft, either in the air, on the sea, or beneath the sea. Early one morning some days after leaving the naval base we sighted a smudge on the horizon, and as we approached we could see through our glasses the immense outline of the giant battleship, flanked on both sides by Canadian destroyers. We approached from head on, and as we swooped in to take our position there was a sudden flurry of destroyers all round the battleship. In a very few minutes, however, we had turned round and taken our positions and were zig-zagging with the other warships.

THROUGH A CONVOY

Catalina flying-boats patrolled the air over us, and one of them reported that there was a large convoy some 50 or 60 miles ahead bound for Britain. The Premier had never seen a large convoy at sea, so with a slight alteration of the course we made towards them. After two or three hours we could see the convoy on the horizon. It was an incredible sight. As far as the eye could see there were ships of every conceivable size and sort all loaded down to the waterline.

They were ranged in lines—in all over eight miles of ships. Around them scurried their escort of corvettes and former American destroyers, keeping stragglers in line, and always ready for the possible approach of danger.

We steamed straight towards them, and then passed right through the middle of the convoy. Each of the "Prince of Wales" escorts chose its opening among the ships, and as we dashed through the lines of the merchantmen we could see that they realised who was paying them this novel visit. We saw men running to hoist flags, while others stood on deck cheering and waving.

GREAT GUNS COCKED UP

The "Prince of Wales" had cocked up all her great 14-inch guns to their highest levels, and if Mr. Churchill was thrilled, it was nothing to the excitement that it caused amongst the vessels of the convoy. We steamed on to perhaps two miles ahead of the convoy, and then the "Prince of Wales" and her escort turned round, and once more we all went through the lines of ships. If there had been enthusiasm before it was nothing to what greeted us the second time. Every merchantmen had had time to hoist flags, and the crews lined the rails waving hats and shouting.

We wished them Godspeed, and then resumed our original course, which was to bring us to Iceland. Here we made the day's stay, and in the evening sailed again for England.

A PRACTICE SHOOT

Earlier in the day on which we met the convoy, the Prince of Wales carried out a practice shoot with her anti-aircraft guns, watched by the Premier and his party. She first fired a smoke shell, which exploded into a compact ball of smoke high up in the sky. Using this as a target, she let loose with her anti-aircraft guns, plastering the area round the ball of smoke with exploding shells. This was followed by an exhibition of barrage fire, using every anti-aircraft gun on board. The battleship's sides seemed to be constantly flaming so great was the rate of fire, while the air all round her was black with exploding projectiles.

The journey from Iceland to Britain was quite uneventful. With her escorts screening her, the Prince of Wales plunging ahead at speed, reached home waters safely after the most remarkable trans-Atlantic voyage of the war.

The British Admiralty announces that H.M. minesweeper No. 39 (Lieutenant G. S. Peyton, R.N.V.R.) has been sunk. The next-of-kin of casualties have been informed.

'BUS AND CAR COLLIDE

ONE DEAD: MANY INJURED

ONE person was fatally injured, nine seriously injured and eight slightly injured when a G.S.R. 'bus and a private car were in collision near the monastery on the Clondalkin road yesterday evening.

The driver of the private car, J. McGlone, Hanover road, Carlow, died in Steevens's Hospital last night. The injured who were detained in hospital are stated to be:—Michael McGlone (13), and Bernard McGlone (12), sons of the dead man; E. Tottan, 25 Mountpleasant square, Rathmines; Mr. E. Cassidy, 10 Beechwood road; Miss Mary Buchanan, 9 The Cottages, Mill street, Enniskillen; Miss N. Walshe, Barbahan, Nenagh, County Tipperary; Miss H. Knowles, 8 Helen's road, Clontarf; the Rev. M. Dowling, of County Carlow; M. T. Carrown, 30 Hollybrook road, Clontarf.

Father Dowling, who has a depressed fracture of the skull, and whose condition is serious, is the son of the former Registrar of the College of Science, and a nephew of Professor Hughes Dowling. He was educated at Clongowes Wood College and ordained about twelve years ago. He graduated in Science at University College, Dublin, and spent some years on the staffs of Mungret and Crescent Colleges. He was travelling to Dublin to spend the night at the Jesuit House, 35 Lower Leeson street, Dublin.

Michael McGlone is also badly injured, while his brother is suffering severely from shock.

Mr. McGlone was an insurance superintendent.

No one witnessed the accident, but an Irish Times reporter learned that the 'bus, which was on its way to Dublin on the Cork-Limerick-Dublin route, swerved to avoid a cyclist, and skidded on the wet road. It mounted the kerb, struck the wall, and glanced off to come in contact with the motor car.

There were thirty-one passengers in the 'bus. First on the scene was an army motor car from Baldonnel, and the driver promptly summoned help from a military post. The injured were brought to hospital in an army ambulance, an army lorry, the army car, and a fire brigade ambulance from Rathmines.

All the windows on the right side of the 'bus were shattered, and the majority of passengers on that side were seriously injured. The driver's cab was completely shattered.

HOLIDAYS

Government restrictions prevent us from having extra copies of the "Irish Times" available at holiday resorts.

On application to this office, we will supply the names and addresses of newsagents in the district to which readers contemplate going, and from whom they can arrange to obtain their copy of the "Irish Times."

THE MANAGER.

Baron Hiranuma, Japanese Minister without Portfolio, who was shot and wounded by a 33-year-old Japanese last Thursday, continues to make "extremely satisfactory" progress, says a Tokyo bulletin. (Reuter.)

DELEGATES TO MOSCOW

MR. EDEN'S POSITION

No final decision has yet been reached regarding the composition of the British delegation to the Anglo-Soviet-American meeting to be held in Moscow. It was stated in London yesterday that there is at present no basis for the report that Mr. Anthony Eden, British Foreign Secretary, will lead the delegation, writes the Press Association Diplomatic Correspondent. The name of Lord Beaverbrook, who is now in the United States, has been mentioned as one of the "high representatives" who will take part in the Moscow Conference.

Miss Gracie Fields left England by air yesterday for her American and British Empire tour.

"..and we could spend our honeymoon here at Greystones"

CONTRACTS.

OFFALY COUNTY BOARD OF HEALTH AND PUBLIC ASSISTANCE.

CLARA SEWERAGE SCHEME.

Tenders are invited from competent Public Works Contractors for the provision of a complete sewerage system for the Town of Clara, in accordance with Drawings and Specification prepared by the Board's Consulting Engineer, Mr. Nicholas O'Dwyer, B.E., M.Inst.C.E.I., M.Inst.W.E., of 6 Burlington road, Dublin.

The works will comprise a Purification system with Imhoff tanks and the laying of the following approximate lengths of concrete or stoneware pipes (alternative prices required): 6" 385 yards, 9" 1,860 yards, 12" 815 yards, 15" 1,085 yards and 18" 145 yards. There will also be some small lengths of C.I. piping.

Copies of the contract documents may be obtained from the Consulting Engineer on payment of a deposit of £5 5s. 0d., returnable on receipt of a bona fide tender not subsequently withdrawn and the return of the contract documents. The recruitment of labour will be governed by the provisions of Memorandum D.S.F. 40/41 issued by the Department of Local Government and Public Health.

Tenders may be either for firm prices, to which substantial preference will be given, or for prices subject to the "War Clause" approved by the Minister for Local Government and Public Health, of which a copy is included in the contract documents.

The acceptance of any tender will be subject to the sanction of the Minister for Local Government and Public Health, and the Board do not bind themselves to accept the lowest or any tender.

Sealed tenders, on the appropriate form provided, endorsed "Tender for Clare Sewerage" and accompanied by a Bill of Quantities, PRICED AND EXTENDED IN INK, should be delivered to the undersigned not later than 12 o'clock, noon, on Friday, September 12th, 1941.

PLANNING PROBLEMS
NATIONAL, REGIONAL AND LOCAL

BY ARTIFEX.

PLANNING, like Mesopotamia, has become a blessedly comforting word. From the revolutionary doctrinaire, who sees social salvation in a "planned economy," to the architect whose planning conceptions frequently fail to get far away from the drawing board and lines on an Ordnance map, we all are compelled to recognise the need for planning operations. To provide a safe bulwark against all kinds of national and civic risks; and a sure remedy for all kinds of social disorders, we must perforce have resort to some kind of five-year, or ten-year, "plan."

What need could be more plain and convincing? Who among us would dare to say that haphazard and happy-go-lucky responses to the day's demands are to be preferred to conformity with some preconceived scheme of development? If it would be lunacy to build an unplanned house, would it not also be insane to cut a new thoroughfare or lay a new sewer without some more or less precise conception of its immediate and contingent functions? Who among us would dream of choosing a homestead without reference to its potential environment?

TRANSPORT AND TARIFFS

Ah!—says the sceptic—plans may be quite good things; but when we get beyond the plans of the house and its surroundings, and have some kind of assurance that a noisy factory or public dance hall will not be built in its immediate vicinity, what guarantee can there be that other plans will be carried out? Have we not been told that men's best-laid schemes "gang aft agley"? Who, twenty years ago, could have foreseen the need for new 'bus routes or public aerodromes? What would be the value of plans which failed to provide for such revolutionary transport developments? Who could have guessed, or had the courage to forecast, that bomb-proof buildings would be among to-day's exigent needs? Or—to go further afield what could have been the use of any plan which failed to take account of a "political economy" from which tariff-protected factories sprang up, almost like mushrooms in a night, in our cities and provincial towns? What assembly of prophets could have foreseen the day in which it would be possible to breakfast on one side of the Atlantic and to dine on the other?

Let us be quite fair to such sceptics. Their doubts, intensified by two decades of surprises without precedent in the history of physical and economic and social sciences may not lightly be set aside. Indeed, they are of the very essence of useful planning in any sphere of activity, be it financial or physical—on the wide and high plane of national needs or within the narrow limits contemplated in twenty years of (hopelessly circumscribed) town-planning legislation.

DESIGN OR DISORDER?

Yet the choice must be made between some kind of designed development and a deliberate drift into wild disorder. Even if it be that five or ten-year plans may have to be adapted to the unpredictable development of intervening years, such adaptations and adjustments of outlook, surely, demand some clearly defined basis and objective. All of which goes to indicate the need for three essential conditions, without which planning activities well may prove to be worse than futile.

THREE CONDITIONS

The first of these conditions is that the planner's outlook should be at once wide and comprehensive, taking account of all the ascertainable facts and visible tendencies—social and economic, physical and psychological—which may be expected to affect the achievement of some given purpose. The second condition is that the operations of regional plan-makers should be inspired, directed and guided by some co-ordinating brain devoted to the study of problems common to all territories and communities within the political unit. Then the third, and possibly most difficult, condition that must be fulfilled if the plan—whatever may be its scope and details—is to keep pace with the march of unforeseen events. That condition is the readiness of mind to consign all preconceived ideas and procedures to the waste paper basket if some new dynamic factor calls for new strategic conceptions. Not, let it be stressed, for the abandonment of planning activities, but for their renewal in the light of new facts or clearly discernible tendencies.

Does that condition mean that plans must be limited to mere suggestions of development by processes of trial and error? In one sense—yes! In another—no! If the sweeping economic and social changes of recent years are to be succeeded by equally unpredictable and sweeping changes in the years that lie immediately ahead the need to adopt solvitur ambulando planning methods—to adapt every preconceived idea to unexpected needs or opportunities—cannot be questioned. To treat any body of proposals, however attractive and convincing they may appear to be in the light of presently-known facts, as being something akin to the law of the Medes and Persians would be the most effective way by which to discredit planning philosophy.

When, then, is it possible to set to work on useful planning operations? What should be their scope and limitations? In what way, and to what extent, should they be distinguished from purely "political activities?" Can they be so disentangled from, or so operated as materially to influence, party policies and programmes? Or, in the final issue, must economic planning remain the sport of partisans—the plaything of doctrinaires?

FUTILE INQUIRIES

Let us test such possibilities by considering some of the specific and relevant issues which recently have been discussed in, and by, the Irish Times. Whether seeking for guidance, or finding it convenient to temporise successive Irish Governments have sought the aid of official inquiries into banking, housing, harbour development, internal transport, arterial drainage, vocational training, and other aspects of economic progress. To themselves Ministers—in the absence of guidance from a national planning authority—quite naturally have reserved the right to adjudicate on the relative merits of the sectional, and frequently competing, demands which such inquiries have advanced. With what ascertainable results? Almost without exception in the consignment of laboriously-prepared reports to departmental pigeon-holes or in their passive acceptance as contributions to library records. In no single case that can be recalled has action been taken on the lines recommended.

Such dissipations of public funds and energies cannot be defended. Leading to deadlocks, their main results are disillusionment and despair. Inevitably they serve to foster disbelief in democratic principles of government. To such futilities, in a large measure, can be traced demands for personally dictated policies and programmes.

RECONSTRUCTION PLANS

On other occasions it may be possible to assign reasons for the belief that representative government and scientific planning are far from being antipathetic, and to indicate the broad lines on which local, regional and national authorities may contribute their indispensable quotas to the preparation of a coherent plan to resolve the problems of post-war reorganisation.

FUNERAL
DR. W. A. GOLIGHER, S.F., T.C.D.

The funeral of Dr. W. A. Goligher, Vice-Provost and Senior Fellow of Trinity College, Dublin, who died last Friday, took place yesterday to St. Fintan's, Sutton, after a Memorial Service in Trinity College Chapel.

The Service was conducted by the Rev. Canon J. E. L. Oulton, D.D., Regius Professor of Divinity, who also officiated at the graveside. The Rev. R. M. Gwynn, S.F., T.C.D., read the lesson; and Professor G. H. P. Hewson, Mus.D., was at the organ.

DUBLIN DISTRICT COURT

ADMITTED STEALING GAS

BEFORE MR. LENNON.

John McCormack (25), Kilworth road, Crumlin, was fined 10/- for laying a connection on a gas main, and thereby using gas direct from the main without passing through a gas meter. McCormack had disconnected two pipes and inserted a length of bicycle tube, thereby cutting out the meter.

He pleaded guilty, and, in a statement, said that because his mother owed money the Alliance and Dublin Consumers' Gas Co. would not supply her with gas. He made the connection to enable his mother to get gas for cooking. The coal she had would not burn.

The District Justice said that it was a dangerous practice. If there had been a leakage the entire household might have been asphyxiated.

BUTTER THEFT ALLEGED

When James Lawlor (19), St. Joseph's Mansions, Killarney street, Dublin, appeared on remand on a charge of stealing 120lb. of butter value £9 from the premises of Messrs. Hughes Bros., Ltd., 29-30 Lower Buckingham street, it was stated that correspondence bearing his name and address was found in the premises.

Lawlor, who said that he was never in Messrs. Hughes's, was remanded for a week.

The loss of valuable possessions can be mitigated by a Norwich Union Policy.—J. G. Aston, Mgr., 63 Dawson street, Dublin. (Advt.)

The Dublin County Executive of the Irish Red Cross Society passed a vote of sympathy with Dr. Clarke, Rathcoole, on the death of her husband, Mr. Liam Clarke, all the members standing in silence.

KEROSENE (PARAFFIN OIL) RATIONING
LICENSING OF RETAILERS.

Retailers of paraffin oil are reminded that if they desire to carry on the business of selling such oil after the 25th August, 1941, they should apply immediately for a Retailer's Licence to the Secretary, Department of Supplies, Ballsbridge, Dublin.

Applications should be made on Form K.D. 1, obtainable in all Post Offices, and postage stamps to the value of 10/- should be affixed to the form. The fee is reduced to 2/6 if the applicant already holds a Tea Retailer's or a Sugar Retailer's Licence.

Every effort is being made to have paraffin oil distributed for domestic use by the beginning of September, and it is essential if the scheme is to operate that all retailers should be in possession of their licences this month.

JOHN LEYDON,
Secretary.

ACID STOMACH

Where's that sunny smile, that merry whistle, that schoolboy appetite, this morning? Why is he so glum and won't touch his breakfast? The answer is ACID STOMACH! Excess acid sours the stomach and upsets the system . . . naturally you feel out-of-sorts and the thought of food is nauseating. Take a little 'Milk of Magnesia' or two 'Milk of Magnesia' brand Tablets, and that sick, sour feeling disappears almost instantly. For 'Milk of Magnesia,' promptly neutralizes the excess acid responsible for the upset. The stomach is soothed and strengthened, appetite returns and digestion proceeds in comfort. Flatulence, heartburn, nausea, indigestion and all stomach troubles due to excess acidity vanish in a marvellous manner on taking 'Milk of Magnesia.' It is the antacid most acceptable to the stomach and the one most extensively prescribed by doctors for patients of all ages. Keep it in readiness as a quick, safe and pleasant corrective for an acid stomach.
Obtainable everywhere.
'Milk of Magnesia' 1/3 and 2/6 (Treble Size). Also 'Milk of Magnesia' Tablets 6d., 1/-, 2/- and 3/6.
'MILK OF MAGNESIA' (Regd)
★ 'Milk of Magnesia' is the trade mark of Phillips' preparation of Magnesia.

Irish "Soccer" Prospects

Shamrock Rovers May Be Team of the Season

THE Association football season of 1941-42 will open in Dublin on next Sunday with the match for the President's Cup, between Shamrock Rovers and Drumcondra, at Tolka Park. The following week-end the League of Ireland clubs play their ties in the Leinster Senior Cup, and on September 6th the City Cup matches come on for review. The League of Ireland will resume operations on November 15-16.

Present indications point to the season, from the football viewpoint, being even a better one than that which finished on such a high note with the Cup final between Cork United and Waterford last season, but the absence of Waterford from the League and Cup will be keenly felt, even although it will mean that every club will have a match each week.

SHAMROCK ROVERS

Perusing the list of transfers one is impressed by the success that has attended the efforts of Shamrock Rovers' directors to get together a side likely to improve on last season's results. Indeed one is inclined to the view that the team of the season will be Rovers, who have effected a couple of big "captures," chief among which was the signing on of David Cochrane, Portadown's brilliant outside right, who perhaps has no superior in the position in Irish football. Jimmy Dunne again has filled the necessary form, and in this pair Rovers have a right wing that will surely take a lot of stopping. They also have come to terms with P. Leeney, who at the end of last season operated in the Bray Unknowns' team at centre forward. They have, however, lost their goalkeeper, M. McCarthy, who has gone to Shelbourne, but they were fortunate to obtain the signature of J. Twomey, the international, from Belfast Celtic—another notable acquisition. Other players who will don the green and white bars will be Bryson, M. Clarke, J. Creevy, M. Doherty, an outstanding right-half of last season; T. Eoy, left-wing, from Limerick, and J. Healy. Still, the directors are searching for additions, and the probability is that before the campaign opens the Glenmalure Park team will be one of the most formidable in the country.

SHELBOURNE

The Shelbourne directorate were a bit disappointed in the result of their negotiations with well-known players, but they had a considerable measure of success. Of last season's team, J. Doyle, W. Fallon, Freddy Kiernan (reserve goalkeeper), Olphert and H. Walsh, among others, have been retained. The newcomers include McCarthy, Rovers' goalkeeper; John O'Driscoll, Waterford's speedy and clever right wing; Cummins, Jacobs' forward; Radford, the most promising of Distillery's (Dublin) forwards of last season, and C. Reeves, formerly of Dundalk, Rovers and St. James's Gate. Shelbourne have the nucleus of a very strong team, and, like Rovers, are on the look-out for others.

ST. JAMES'S GATE

Paddy Bradshaw, St. James's Gate's dashing and crafty centre-forward, has not yet signed for a club, but the Gate have made valuable additions to their attack and defence in Bonner, of Distillery, an outside-right, who last season was thought a lot of in the North, and G. Thompson, who was with Bradford last season as full-back. John Clarke, Bohemians' centre-half, also signed the Gate's form, as did J. Mehigan, the amateurs' right full-back of last season, and J. Ward, of the Rovers. Players retained are C. Murtagh, N. Matthews, O'Rourke, T. Smyth, P. Smith and E. Noonan.

DUNDALK

George Black, Portadown's half-back, changes to Dundalk, who also will be strengthened by the addition of Frank Grice, who was very prominent in the N.I. Regional League last season; A. Kelly (Belfast Celtic), J. Lavery (also of Belfast), and Gerald Matier, Larne, and ex-Huddersfield goalkeeper. P. Barlow, their brilliant right wing, remains with the club, as do J. Donnelly, Cluskey, Crowley, Lunn and O'Neill.

DRUMCONDRA

The Portadown goalkeeper, John Doherty, will keep goal for Drumcondra, who have retained most of last season's team, among them Byrne, Hutchinson, Kavanagh, McNamara, O'Rourke and O'Brien. Other signatures are those of P. Daly (Home Farm) and P. Daly (Northcote), the Junior right wing against the Scottish Juniors last season.

Bray Unknowns have not finished their team-building, but to date they have got together a very useful lot, which embraces J. Feenan, Shelbourne's international full back; J. Coleman, N. Dunne, T. Doran, last season's outside right, and T. Sandes, their old goalkeeper. Present intentions are that Doran will be tried at back with Feenan, and that negotiations in progress with other players will be successful.

CORK UNITED

Eight of last season's Cork United team, winners of Cup and League, have been signed for the coming season, wires our Cork correspondent. They are—Foley, McGowan, Duffy, Hooks, McKenna, McFarlane, McCarthy and O'Neill. Of the remaining trio, O'Riordan (centre-half) may not be available, as he intends taking up a position outside the country, but O'Reilly's signature is expected shortly. There is still nothing definite about Madden, last year's captain, whose suspension runs to October 31st. O'Mahony, Waterford right half, has been signed, as have several locals, who will form a second eleven. Negotiations are also proceeding with some cross-Channel and Northern Ireland players.

Limerick's list is not yet to hand, but it is stated that the club is in communication with a number of prominent players.

As in the latter half of last season, Bohemians and Shelbourne will again play their away matches with other Dublin clubs, if desired, on Sundays. They will, of course, play all their home matches on Saturdays.

Six Teams in North Regional League

FROM OUR BELFAST CORRESPONDENT

AFTER a period of doubt, caused by uncertainty as to the position of Glentoran, matters have been satisfactorily settled, and the North Regional League will enter on its second season on Saturday next, with six teams taking part.

Eight clubs played in the first season of the competition last year, but Portadown and Glenavon decided to close down for the duration of the war, and this left Derry City and the five Belfast clubs to carry on.

Damage caused by bombing placed Glentoran in an awkward position, without stand accommodation and dressing rooms. Negotiations were entered into with Distillery for the use of Grosvenor Park on alternate Saturdays, but a couple of weeks ago the directors decided to call the shareholders together and place before them the difficulties they foresaw in running a team.

A deputation was appointed to confer with the Regional League, and then Linfield came along with the offer of Windsor Park free of rent, while Distillery made a modified offer for the use of their ground. With the financial burden thus eased the shareholders were called together again, and they decided to accept the offer of Distillery, whose ground is more conveniently situated.

CRUSADERS CLOSE

Players and supporters of many of the clubs are doing war work, and some of the Intermediate League clubs also have had to close down, the most notable being Crusaders, who have several times made application for admission to the Irish League.

On the other hand, there are several strong military teams, but their inclusion in League competitions are not always feasible, as the exigencies of service may cause units to be moved, and upset the fixtures. However, the Royal Ulster Rifles and the Royal Inniskilling Fusiliers both played in the Irish Cup last season, and the Royal Irish Fusiliers will compete this year. All three teams have cross-Channel professional players in their ranks.

It is likely that the Cup—for the first time in its history—will be played on the home and away match system, the goal average of the two matches to decide which of the sides shall pass on.

The Regional League again will be played in four rounds and March 17th and Easter Monday, 1942, will be left free for matches with the League of Ireland, if these can be arranged.

A British Army team of first-class professionals is to play three matches here in September. The first of these will be against Ireland on September 13th, and the I.F.A. hope to obtain the services of Alec Stevenson, of Everton, and Peter Doherty, of the Royal Air Force, for this game. The tourists will play the Army in Northern Ireland on the 15th, and on the 17th they will meet an Irish League team.

CELTIC STRENGTH

Belfast Celtic again look like having the strongest team in the North, as they have lost only one player, Kelly, who has gone to Dundalk. R. P. Fulton has had a long run with the champions, and again will wear their colours; but they have two other grand backs in Lavery and McMillen. With Breen behind them, the defence should be as sound as ever. Twoomey, the former Leeds United goalkeeper, could not be expected to continue as reserve goalkeeper, and he may be seen in Eire football.

Three of Linfield's forwards of recent years—J. L. Donnelly, the Scottish amateur international; Harry Baird, of Huddersfield, and Dick Marshall, a Scot from Maryhill—have joined the R.A.F.; but new forwards signed include Scott, of Newcastle United; Duffy, the Leith Athletic inside left, who has been assisting Glenavon. Feeny, of Crusaders; Barr, of Manchester City, and Brown, a centre-half from Bangor, are among the recent signings.

Grice and Lavery, two of the Glentoran forwards have signed for Dundalk, and Smith, from Liverpool Marine, has returned to England; but Elliott, the former Wolverhampton Wanderers' goalkeeper, will again be playing, and Martin and Young, backs from Tottenham and the Arsenal, are expected to be available, while Martin, the Irish international centre forward, will play, except in the Irish Cup, in which he will assist his regimental team, the Royal Ulster Rifles. McMillen and McKennan, stars of last year will turn out.

DERRY'S THIRTY

Twice in each month Derry City will be travelling to Belfast, and the management is building up a strong team and reserves. Thirty professionals have been signed or retained, and newcomers include Parris (Cardiff), Palmer (Plymouth), Whitley (Leeds) and Maxwell (Clyde). The departure of Watt Doherty to Shamrock Rovers is a loss, but Wilton, of Dublin Distillery, who is a nephew of the I.F.A. president, Sir James Wilton, has been signed.

Under the management of Alf Peachey, the former Sligo Rovers' centre-half, Distillery, who showed improvement last season, will not have many changes. Prout, who has gone back to England, and Bonnor, who will be seen with St. James's Gate, will be missed. The most notable addition to the playing staff is Waring, of Sheffield Wednesday and Crewe.

At the end of each season the amateur side, Cliftonville, pioneers of the game in this country, generally lose some of their players to the professional ranks; but the number this year is fewer than usual, and the experience which the young players gained last season should increase their confidence and improve their team work.

When the Gold Cup opens this week Distillery will be visiting Linfield at Windsor and Cliftonville will play Glentoran at Grosvenor Park, while Belfast Celtic travel to Derry City.

PEACE MOVE IN ENGLAND

A genuine effort was made at Derby yesterday to settle the difference between the Football League and the London clubs. After a conference lasting three hours between members of the Football League Management Committee and Mr. George Allison, representing the London clubs, it was stated that Mr. W. C. Cuff and Mr. W. J. Cearns, of the League, would meet the London clubs next Friday.

ENGLISH RACING OFFICIAL DEAD

Captain R. L. Busby, Secretary and Clerk of Manchester Racecourse, has died at his home at Grassington, Yorks. He had been ill for some time, but was well enough to attend the Manchester August Bank Holiday meeting at Castle Irwell.

Captain Busby, a Salford City magistrate, was awarded the O.B.E. in 1938 for political and public services in Manchester and Salford. He had been Secretary of the Manchester Racecourse Company since 1906.

It was later learned that Captain Busby was found hanged in a barn at Old Hall Farm, Threshfield, Grassington, shortly before midday yesterday. The discovery was made by a youth. Captain Busby had lived at Old Hall Farm since June. He moved to the Dales after experiencing the air attacks on the Manchester district, and it is understood that he suffered from nervous trouble, for which he was receiving attention. Mrs. Busby is living in Salford. The inquest will be held to-day.

Cecil Ewing Makes Course Record

BY OUR GOLF CORRESPONDENT.

With a perfectly played 70, Cecil Ewing yesterday, at Dollymount, in the Leinster Branch 36 holes senior competition, set an amateur record for the Royal Dublin links. In 1937 James Mahon, also of the Co. Sligo Club, from the medal tees, had a record score of 68, only two above Ernest Whitcombe's record figures in the Open Championship of Ireland in 1931; but Ewing's round (4 under bogey) is the best played by an amateur on the reconstructed links from the championship tees. Since Mahon established his record, the 4th, 5th and 9th have been appreciably lengthened. Ewing's figures were:—

Out ...... 4 4 4 4 4 3 3 4 3—33

In ......... 4 5 3 5 5 4 3 5 3—37

"Now for a 70—or a 90," remarked Ewing, as he started the second round. In the forenoon he played very much below his form for 81. He stood on the last teeing ground after lunch requiring a 3 for a 70, planked his low iron shot at the holeside, and had only to knock the ball in for 3—a magnificent round under most trying conditions. It was comparatively easy going on the holes out, but quite the reverse coming back—typical Dollymount conditions, in fact.

The best first nine of the day—32—were reeled off by R. McConkey, one of Royal Dublin's scratchmen; but Ewing on his second round was only one more for the outward holes, the bogey of which is 35. He had five 4s to start with; then came a couple of 3s, 4 and 3. For the first six holes on the way in he had bogies. He beat the Colonel by one at the 16th, lost a stroke at the 17th, and finished with that perfect 3, only to tie with Brendan Scannell, of Woodbrook, at 151.

McConkey, William Gill and Scannell headed the first round totals with 75; but Gill and the Royal Dublin man lapsed on the last round. Scannell, however, continued to play excellent golf, and had bad luck, indeed, in not winning the leading award. A 4 at the home hole would have given him an aggregate of 150. His drive was powerful and straight down to the gate, but he misjudged the distance to the flag, took a No. 6, was over the green, and with a 5 lost a great chance of topping the scores for the first time in a Union tournament. Joseph Carr and Robin McConkey finished level at 155 for the third prize, and two strokes below them were Gerald Owens and Gill. The ties will be played off on Friday.

R. C. Ewing (Co. Sligo) ...... 81 70=151

Boxing

Stadium Dates for 1941-42

THE following dates have been allocated for boxing tournaments at the National Stadium, Dublin, in the coming season:

August 29—County Board Tournament.
Sept. 26—St. Andrew's B.C.
Oct. 3—Group Tournament (1)—Luttrellstown B.C., Myra B.C. and St. John Bosco B.C.
Oct. 10—Corinthians B.C.
Oct. 17—Group Tournament (2) — Finglas B.C., South City B.C., and Mount Street Club B.C.
Oct. 24—Arbour Hill B.C.
Oct. 31—Phœnix B.C.
Nov. 7—Provincial Council Tournament.
Nov. 14—North City B.C.
Nov. 20 & 21—Army Senior Championships.
Nov. 27 & 28—National Junior C'ships.
Dec. 5—Central Council Tournament.
Dec. 12—Sandymount B.C.
Jan. 9 (1942)—Avona B.C.
Jan. 16—Catholic Scouts' B.C.
Jan. 23—Provincial Council Tournament.
Jan. 30—Garda B.C.
Feb. 6—Central Council Tournament.
Feb. 13—St. Vincent's B.C.
Feb. 20—Whitehall B.C.
Feb. 27—Nil.

April 9 & 10—National Juvenile C'ships.

Dates vacant (Fridays)—February 27, March 12, March 19, March 26, April 16.

In view of the difficulties likely to be experienced in the successful organisation of tournaments during the season, the County Dublin Board has made the following rulings, which must be strictly adhered to in all cases:—

The maximum number of contests staged on a tournament must not exceed ten, with a suggested division as follows:—5 contests of duration 6 2-minute rounds, 3 contests of duration 4 2-minute rounds, and 2 juvenile contests.

Tournaments must finish not later than 10.15 p.m., and the tournament inspector shall be empowered to take all steps necessary to ensure that this rule is strictly adhered to.

In order to ensure that tournaments will start promptly at 7.45 p.m., clubs are warned that all competitors engaged on the programme, together with club seconds, must be in attendance at the dressing-rooms not later than 7.30 p.m. The whip on each tournament is to be directed to ensure the strict observance of this rule, and to cancel those contests in which the competitors concerned are not in attendance at the time specified. Boxers or seconds ignoring this direction will be severely dealt with.

Greyhound Racing Won First Time Out at Shelbourne

The Mullingar greyhound, Whirling Border Wind, displayed splendid stamina in winning the 600 yards stake last night at Shelbourne Park. She had not previously run on the Shelbourne track, but, breaking well, she was in the lead virtually all the way, and passed the line three lengths in front of Kylock Stardust, who made up a lot of ground in the straight. The Shelbourne Stake of 525 yards provided the best finish of the night, Equal Parts just getting up to beat Rozzer's Joy by a head, with Desert Rogue, half a length away, third. Skiddale, with odds laid on, never left the issue in doubt in the 525 yards hurdle in the fast time of 31.63 secs.

525 YARDS—WELCOME FIND (4), 3 to 1, 1; Royal Squadron (1), 7 to 2, 2; Heir to Surplus (6), 7 to 2, 3. Also ran—Just Get Out (2), 5 to 2; Rochford Rover (5), 5 to 2; Model Royal (3), 3 to 1. 1½l.; a neck. 31.60 secs. (Mr. T. Williams, owner.)

ROTARIANS HEAR OF STRANGE INTERVIEWS

Mr. J. Doran-O'Reilly was yesterday's speaker at the Rotary Club luncheon held at the Gresham Hotel, Dublin. Mr. Vincent O'Hare presided.

In the course of his work as a journalist, said Mr. O'Reilly, he had interviewed upwards of 2,000 people in Ireland. It did not matter what status he contacted—they all had an appeal, interesting, topical, or very human. He had met a man who had come to believe that the character, personality and characteristics of a man are affected by the direction of light. It was this system of philosophy that called the Druids in ancient Ireland and the Continent to build round houses so that they should become great. The man in question was Duncan Parker, locally known as the hermit of Kilmashogue, in the Dublin hills. Parker left a good job in the city to go to the hills, where he built himself a round house with many windows, and he said that his experiment had been a complete success. Mr. O'Reilly also gave details of other unusual interviews and experiences.

MINIMUM GRAIN PRICES DEMAND

The National Executive meeting of the Irish Farmers' Federation has adopted a resolution demanding that the following minimum prices be fixed for this year's grain crop:—Wheat, 50s. per barrel; barley, 37s. per barrel, and oats 26s. per barrel, and that the price of feeding offals be fixed before the farmers sell their harvest, and advising farmers to keep their own requirement of grain seed.

Fell From Cliff.—Thos. Bookey (19), Moore street, Dublin, was admitted to St. Michael's Hospital, Dun Laoghaire, suffering from a leg fracture, received when he fell from the top of a cliff at Bray Head Park.

"MAKING A PLAY"

ART OF THE PRODUCER

THE important part played by the producer in "Making a Play" was the subject of Mr. Lennox Robinson's remarks when, last evening, in the Peacock Theatre, Lower Abbey street, Dublin, he continued his lectures under that title.

It is really only in the last thirty years or so, said Mr. Robinson, that the producer has appeared as such. Of course, there was from the start, in the days of the old miracle and morality plays, in every company a dominating person, who directed the players as to their entries, lines and so forth; but it was really only in David Garrick's time—perhaps with Garrick himself—that the producer emerged in the form of the actor-manager—the star actor, who chose a play to suit his own "starriness."

That continued down to the close of the nineteenth century, reaching its peak with Irving, Beerbohm Tree and many other fine actors. These, however, looked on a play never from the outside—they could not see it as did the audience. The effect of this actor-manager-producer all rolled into one led to the English stage being almost entirely neglected by literary people—the great figures only went to the theatre when some classical masterpiece—usually Shakespeare—was being played.

A CHANGE

Then came a change, when two great figures—William Powell and Gordon Craig—took up the art of play production. The character of plays themselves began to change, and as the subject-matter grew lower and lower there was inevitably a departure from the splendacious style of Tree.

The appearance of the Irish plays, with their simple cottage interiors, set a new style. Step by step there came different kinds of producers. Outstanding amongst these was Granville Barker, and it was with his appearance that the producer really emerged, and that audiences began to appreciate, for the first time, the important contribution the producer made to the art of the theatre. The idea of people travelling hundreds of miles to see a production by, say, Reinhardt, at Oxford, would have been inconceivable a hundred years ago.

PRODUCER'S TASK

As to the task of the producer, Mr. Robinson said that he has to soak himself in the play and its characters, until the latter appear almost as in the flesh. Then he is faced with the important task of casting the play. The producer, in this regard, will probably never get the complete cast he wants, but will compromise as best he can. An amiable producer will welcome the assistance of the author, and may ask his advice on certain points, even getting him to talk to the players about their parts.

EFFECT OF IRISH PLAYS

Next came the difficult matter of staging, and here Mr. Robinson's advice to the producer was to avoid, at all costs, cluttering up the stage with unnecessary furniture. But before he has handed the script to the players for rehearsal, said Mr. Robinson, the experienced producer will have worked out every movement and every position, so that at rehearsal there will be no fumbling or vacillation on his part. In the ordinary realistic play, there must be a minimum of gesture and movement. This was one of the features of the Irish plays of Synge, and others, when they were first seen in London, providing such a marked contrast to the English drawingroom plays, with their aimless movements.

Above all, the producer must aim at fixing and holding the attention of his audience from the rise of the curtain.

The next lecture in the series will be given to-morrow evening.

T.D. ASKED FOR EXPLANATION

COUNTY COUNCIL AND BRIBERY CHARGE

At a specially requisitioned meeting of Dublin County Council last evening, on the motion of Mr. Corr, seconded by Mr. Holland, the following resolution was passed:—

"That as Councillor P. J. Fogarty, T.D., has not attended this meeting, we now call upon him for an explanation of his charge of 'bribery and corruption,' made against this Council at the recent inquiry, and request him to attend the next meeting of the Council, when he will have an opportunity for so doing."

An amendment by Mr. Rollins, seconded by the Chairman (Mr. J. J. Clare) stated that:—"As Deputy Fogarty had not been in the chair on oath, he had made no definite charge on oath, and the whole matter should be dropped by the Council."

On an adjournment being suggested, Mrs. Mulvey said that she was not prepared to attend another meeting to discuss the matter. Something should be decided there and then, or they should abandon the whole question. Deputy Fogarty had been specially invited to attend the meeting to give him the opportunity of publicly explaining his statements, and he had not turned up. The deputy had, to the full knowledge of all the members, told a newspaper reporter that he would be prepared at any time to back up these charges.

Mr. Corr said that they had had a telegram from Deputy Fogarty stating that he was in Ballybunion, but that Deputy Cooney had 'phoned his private residence and had been told that Deputy Fogarty had gone out a short while before.

"I have been," went on Mr. Corr, "a member of the Council for the past eight years and have had differences with my colleagues many times on serious matters, but in that eight years I have never known a member to be concerned in anything savouring of bribery or corruption. The only thing wrong with the Dublin County Council, from Deputy Fogarty's viewpoint, is that he was not elected chairman. I am sorry he is not here to-night. Perhaps, I myself might charge him with something."

IRISH SPEAKERS WANT ENGLISH PRINT

FROM OUR CORRESPONDENT.

GALWAY, Monday.

The complaint that rate demand notes were printed in Irish, which the people of his district could not read, although they all spoke the language, was made by Mr. P. Furey, a member of Galway County Council Finance Committee. Mr. Furey asked that the demand notes be printed half in Irish and half in English in future.

Mr. J. J. Keane, T.D.—Can't they read the figures? Is not that all they want?

The Acting Secretary said it would be very difficult to have the demand notes printed in Irish and in English, but if anyone unable to read the Irish on the document applied to the office a copy in English would be supplied.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

"A DANGER TO THE NATION"

TO THE EDITOR OF THE IRISH TIMES.

SIR,—The Most Rev. Dr. Browne, Bishop of Galway, had some very interesting observations to make concerning the steady flow of young men and women from this country to England to earn their bread and butter. He is really quite angry about it, without, of course, providing them with an incentive to remain at home.

We all regret the necessity which compels young people to go outside of their own country to procure a living; yet, short of doing that, what else is there for them to do? If they remain at home and live off their parents they are "spongers." If they resort to the dole and relief systems they are burdensome "parasites" upon the public purse, and no one has a good word for them; and if by some rare chance a job is "landed" here the remuneration that goes with it is, more often than not, an insult to human intelligence and decency. There is plenty of necessary work to be done in this country, but, alas, there is no money to hand to pay for its being taken in hand. How strange!

Frankly, I think it is a very good job that we have the English labour market absorbing so many of our unemployables, else we would quite possibly have found ourselves in queer street long before this. I don't blame the young people for crossing to England. If their own country cannot, or will not, provide them with livelihoods, more's the pity and the shame! This is a problem that effects the membership of all the Churches. They can do a great deal by way of helping in its solution, but it will want to be something more than "windy" talk. More power to the young people for going. No doubt the experience will have a broadening effect upon their minds, and they will conclude that the average Englishman isn't such a bad fellow after all, and not so villainous as certain of our mentors would have us believe.—Yours, etc.,

FREDERICK J. LANE.

Dublin, August 17th, 1941.

PETROL COUPONS

TO THE EDITOR OF THE IRISH TIMES.

SIR,—In your issue of to-day, under the caption "Motoring Holidays Spoiled," it is stated, dealing with the delay in the issue of petrol coupons, that an official of the Automobile Association expressed the view that "in some cases motorists were to blame for the position inasmuch as they had not sent in application for coupons early enough."

This attempt to excuse the lethargy of the Department is an instance of confused thinking, from which those of us who subscribe to the upkeep of the A.A., and have been held up till almost the middle of the month for want of petrol, will strongly dissent. Surely, instead of cluttering up the Department with all the applications at once at the beginning of the month, the spread-out of the applications should have facilitated, instead of impeding, the issue to those who made timely application.

The primary cause of the trouble was the last-hour notification to the public that petrol would be available at all for the month of August. Certainly, so far as the city was concerned, the resulting rush of car-owners to register their cars was dealt with promptly and energetically by the registering authority of the Corporation, an example which appears to have been entirely lost on the plethoric staff of Mr. Lemass's Department. Only recently the head of the Government strenuously defended the administration of this Department by the Minister.

Well, even the censor can hardly forbid us to smile.—Yours, etc.,

VINCENT RICE.

2 Northbrook road, Dublin, August 13th, 1941.

COMMUNITY KITCHENS

TO THE EDITOR OF THE IRISH TIMES.

SIR,—Your very interesting articles and leaders on Community Kitchens will, I am sure, make many women wish to help, and for those who have gardens and who grow pot herbs I would like to suggest that, if gathered now and dried, they would be very acceptable.

Sage, thyme, marjoram, rosemary, bay parsley, mint, to say nothing of shallots, make all the difference to soups and stews, and I am sure the members of An Oige Social Service Club would welcome them. Herbs are easily grown, and most valuable, and will thrive in places unsuited for the larger vegetables.—Yours, etc.,

"A. M. B."

Ballsbridge, Dublin, August 17th, 1941.

If you think this suggestion worth anything you might publish it, but I know your space is very valuable.

"DRINKING TIME"

TO THE EDITOR OF THE IRISH TIMES.

SIR,—Your interviewer, by omission, has unintentionally misrepresented me in one particular. I do not agree with the double opening on Sunday for city public-houses for three reasons:—

1. My colleagues in the county have paid large sums for the right to the "bona fide" trade. This right would be gravely infringed by the Sunday city hours suggested by the Garda Review.

2. At present (working a three-hour Sunday) barmen get one full day off in each week, the balance of hours off to bring the present 68½ hours opening week down to a 48-hour working week being given as best suits the individual house. Under the Shops (Conditions of Employment) Act, 1938, a shop assistant working more than four hours on Sunday is entitled to a full day off during the following week, so that this would appear to mean two full days' holiday per week for barmen working more than four hours on Sunday. I believe that the adjustments necessary to meet this state of affairs would outweigh any profits which might accrue from possible extra trade.

3. A second closing on Sunday adds one more potential pitfall to the already rugged path which the publican must daily tread through our laughable licensing laws.

If the present three-hour opening were put forward to 3 p.m., closing at 6 p.m., with power given to the licensing magistrate to grant an exemption from 1 p.m. to 7 p.m. on special occasions, I believe the interests of all parties would be met.—Yours, etc.,

MICHAEL A. COLE, Chairman, The Licensed Grocers' and Vintners' Protection Association.

August 16th, 1941.

DR. GEORGE ELLIS

TO THE EDITOR OF THE IRISH TIMES.

SIR,—In connection with some antiquarian research, I should be glad to get in touch, through the medium of the Irish Times, with any descendant who may now be in Ireland of Dr. George Ellis, who was in practice at 91 Leeson street, Dublin, in 1853.—Yours, etc.,

DONAL O'SULLIVAN.

CLOSING HOURS AT DUBLIN CAFES

No definite decision so far has been reached regarding the closing time of cafés and restaurants in Dublin. Except in the case of one big restaurant, no arrangement has been made for the transport home of café and restaurant employés, who are working until midnight; but it is understood that this is a trial period, and that it has been agreed that the present system will continue for a week or so, until the effect on the night trade of the early cessation of 'bus services can be fully estimated.

BIG KILKEE BLAZE

TOWN HALL PREMISES GUTTED

FROM OUR CORRESPONDENT.

KILKEE, Monday.

Last night, one hour before the cinema show was due to commence, an outbreak of fire occurred at the Town Hall, Kilkee, completely destroying the building.

The fire apparently started in the film operating box and involved the films. Despite the efforts of Mr. Dan Ryan, who rents the hall from the owners, the flames spread rapidly to the main portion of the building, and in a short time the whole place was enveloped in the blaze.

Mr. Ryan, in his efforts to control the flames, received serious injuries to his face and hands, and seeing his efforts were unavailing he was forced to make his escape by jumping from an upper window. The alarm was quickly raised and the local Fire Brigade, the L.D.F. (under Group Leader M. Marrinan), the L.S.F. (under Group Leader Byrne), and Gardai, under Sergeant P. Carroll, arrived, and all did trojan work. Despite their work flames shot hundreds of feet into the air. Within a short time it was apparent that the building could not be saved and the fire-fighters directed their efforts to save the adjoining buildings, and in this connection their labours were successful.

CUT OFF ELECTRIC CURRENT

When the fire was at its worst the local E.S.B. official, Mr. James Mullane, climbed a near-by standard and disconnected the current going to the hall. Within a few hours the roof collapsed and all that remained of the hall were smouldering ruins and a mass of twisted iron.

The L.D.F. kept playing water until the fire was completely quenched.

The hall, which was erected in 1914, was owned by Kilkee Town Improvements Committee, who lease it each year for dancing and cinema shows.

TRADE UNION BILL IN SENATE

EIGHT AMENDMENTS BY MINISTER

The Senate to-morrow will have before it the Neutrality (War Damage to Property) Bill and the Trade Union Bill, both on Report stage. Amendments to both will be moved.

The Minister has given notice of eight amendments to the Trade Union Bill. One of these deals with negotiations for fixing wages. He will propose that nothing will prevent any person or group of persons mediating in a trade dispute, or bringing together the parties with a view to an amicable settlement. The Minister will also propose that: "The Tribunal shall not grant a determination that a trade union registered under the law of another country, and having its headquarters control in that country, or two or more such trade unions shall alone have the right to organise masters of any particular class."

The "L.G.D."

This newspaper has welcomed a succession of Ministers to the Customs House. Now it welcomes another, in the person of Mr. Sean MacEntee, who has exchanged the portfolio of Industry and Commerce for that of Local Government. We have the most friendly feelings towards Mr. MacEntee, whose careful handling of the national balance-sheets between 1932 and 1939 saved the State a lot of trouble and expense; and we hope that our feelings six months hence will be even more friendly. He must be fully aware that he has entered upon the least enviable—though by no means the least important—office in the Cabinet. During many years past the Department of Local Government and Public Health has received substantially more kicks than halfpence, and has deserved most of them. It has become a byword for indecision and ineffectiveness. There is hardly a local authority in the length and breadth of the twenty-six counties which has not declaimed against it: there is hardly a county councillor, county surveyor, county engineer, medical officer of health, alderman—or, for that matter, intelligent citizen—who does not show signs of apoplexy when conversation turns upon the Customs House. In the last few months troubles have piled upon it thick and fast, so that never a week passes but some local authority complains of a decision that ought to have been reached at the Customs House two years ago, and has not been reached yet. Certainly it receives more abuse than the remaining Departments of Government put together—with the possible exception of Supplies. This is the legacy that descends to Mr. MacEntee. He is short of stature, but broad of shoulder: will he be broad enough to bear the burden? We hope so, and we think so, but he will require to take the job very seriously, indeed; and we venture to suggest that, by way of a start, he should sit down and do some thinking.

Mr. MacEntee ought to look for the source of the blight that affects his new Department and its relations with the local authorities. He has an excellent staff: some of the best administrative brains in Ireland are being allowed to atrophy behind the windows of the Customs House. As a study of a particular branch of local government, the report of the Greater Dublin Tribunal—of which three out of the four "effectives" were officers of the Department—could not have been bettered. Yet the report is a dead letter. What is the reason? Is it that Mr. Sean T. O'Kelly, the Minister of the time, lacked sufficient interest to force his own Department's findings upon the Government's attention; or is it that the Cabinet cannot recognise the importance of a modern system of local administration in Dublin, and blocks the Department's efforts? This is only one example of the ineffectiveness that has given the Department a bad name. We have no doubt that it is full of ideas, but it never gets anything done. Mr. MacEntee's first job is to probe this evil. He can go a long way towards its remedying himself, if he makes up his mind that no decisions will be delayed through any dilatoriness on his own part—for an Irish Minister is not entirely a figurehead. He must find out why decisions are delayed, and, if the ordinary machinery of his Department is at fault, he must put it in order. We suspect, however, that the disease lies deeper still. To a large extent, it may be due to overwork—to an almost bewildering multiplicity of functions. A recent article in these columns described the Department of Local Government as a maid-of-all-work. Its spheres of activity include the Road Fund, the feeding of school-children, house-building, public assistance, water supply, old age pensions, hospitals, elections, town and regional planning, local authority accounts, and vital statistics. Can a single Department reasonably be expected to keep its head clear in such a labyrinth?

If Mr. MacEntee wishes to remove the blight from the Customs House, he will do well to call for a Cabinet meeting, in order to raise the whole question of the relations between the Departments. If he succeeds, he will be free to perform some work of real value. He made acquaintance yesterday, when the Corporation of Dublin called upon the Taoiseach and himself, with the impending problem of community feeding, which will be one of his new functions. He will be able to consider the reorganisation of local government in the twenty-six counties, so as to equip it for the tasks of to-day. It becomes his duty to inquire if the existing multitude of local authorities, large and small, overlapping and over-riding one another, so often at loggerheads either with their neighbours or with the Government, cannot be replaced by a cheaper and more efficient system. He will have to decide whether a re-division of the country into a limited number of "regions" will not serve, from every point of view, a useful purpose. He ought to study the growth of parish councils, not merely as emergency committees, but as a permanent feature of local organisation; and he certainly must administer a reproof to the hundreds of parishes which so far have taken no steps for their own salvation. He ought to take stock of the slow progress of town and regional planning. The thorny problem of hospitals will force itself upon him. Let us repeat that we do not envy Mr. MacEntee his job. Ten thousand wary eyes will be fixed upon him, and, whatever he does, he will be unpopular. He will be most unpopular of all, however, if he does nothing, and we submit that he cannot afford to do nothing; for in such a case the whole fabric of government in Ireland is bound to suffer. It is in the power of Mr. MacEntee and his Department to create a more stable and better-equipped country—a country, too, that will be substantially cheaper for rate-payer and tax-payer alike. We are confident that he will try. He hardly would have accepted so burdensome and invidious an office if he had not intended to do his best with it.

Plastics Again!

For some reason or another plastics seem to have been figuring largely in the news during the past few months. It is not very long since we commented on a "Pelican" publication on the subject, and, at the same time, on the King's visit to a war-time factory in Great Britain which was producing aeroplane parts manufactured from plastics. Some time later it was announced that an American chemist had discovered a way by which Brazil's surplus coffee could be turned into a plastic composition, suitable for the manufacture of anything from a pepper canister to an aeroplane wing. This week comes the latest and most remarkable of the facts about plastics. According to a report in The Times, Mr. Henry Ford has produced his first "all-plastic" car. Naturally, of course, the frame, the engine, and the wheels still are made of metal, but every other feature of the car is manufactured from some type of plastic—mainly from cellulose combinations derived from such common farm products as wheat, cotton, maize and soya beans, with resin as a binder. Although it is difficult to conceive—such is conservatism—that a car made from such materials could be very strong, the report goes on to say that the plastic panels of the car, although only 3-16ths of an inch thick, can withstand a blow ten times harder than the same thickness of steel without showing a dent. The weight of the new car amounts only to 2,000lbs., or, roughly, two-thirds the weight of a similar car constructed in the normal manner from steel. The plastic car still is in an experimental stage, but it is believed that the weight can be reduced further without any resultant decrease in strength. It seems to have certain advantages over the all-steel type. Although plastics cost more than steel to produce in the first place, most of them—as, for example, bakelite, which is used for the manufacture of a multitude of common things—when manufactured are completely finished and ready for use, while steel requires many fabricating and finishing operations, which waste both time and money.

Rationed Magic

In these hard times, when there is a shortage of most commodities, and almost every day the newspapers tell of some further article to be rationed, it is seldom that one finds a reported scarcity interesting. We must admit, however, that we read with considerable interest and surprise of the latest shortage. The reasons for our surprise are two-fold; in the first place, the shortage of this commodity exists in America, where, one would imagine, there should be plenty of everything; and, in the next place, the commodity itself consists of nothing more or less than crystals—not sugar nor lemonade crystals, but the spheric, magic variety which normally are used by all sorts and conditions of fortune-tellers. The Manchester Guardian's report does not mention the reason for this shortage; but it would be difficult to resist speculation. Do the crystal-gazers import the implements of their calling straight from Europe? Have the military authorities in America discovered that the crystals—or the materials from which the crystals are manufactured—can be put to a work of greater national importance? Since the crystals are supposed to be magical—and, therefore, presumably, irreplaceable—it may be that the profession is becoming overcrowded. We are glad to read, however, that the shortage has not prevented the fortune-tellers from continuing with their good work; they are making use, we learn, of a large variety of substitutes, varying from a glass of wine—or even water—to a polished piece of basalt. If the worst should happen they always can become astrologers. It may be a more difficult branch of the magical science, but, at any rate, they would have the consolation of knowing that the stars cannot be rationed.

THE GRAND CANAL

Do you know the length of the Grand Canal? Mr. J. Scott, an official of the company, told the Theatre Royal audience, when he was being interviewed by Roy Irving in the Hullabaloo programme, that it was 166 miles. He added that isolated canal stretches linking up Waterford, Carrick-on-Shannon and other towns with the main system brought the total mileage of waterways controlled by the company up to 360.

The first attempt to construct a canal system dated back to 1756, when a Board of Inland Navigation was set up; but, owing to faulty engineering, it failed. The Grand Canal Company started operations in 1772, and it took over thirty years to connect the Shannon with Dublin. His company, Mr. Scott said, originally built their system for the use of anyone who wanted to pursue commerce in these artificial waters, but now the company maintained its own fleet of barges. His company was the first in the British Isles to build motor-driven steel barges carrying a full load of fifty tons.

Asked if passengers were carried on the Grand Canal, Mr. Scott said that as long ago as 1780 a passenger barge left Dublin twice a week for Naas, and the service was later extended to Kildare. "The officials on these barges," he concluded, "wore as their distinctive uniform a blue frockcoat, red waistcoat, leather breeches, and a high, glazed hat. They were also heavily armed with blunderbuss and pistols."

MYSTERY CHIME FOR NEW CHURCH

FROM OUR CORRESPONDENT.

LIMERICK, Monday.

The Augustinian Order in Limerick has secured a chime of seven bells—one large and six smaller ones—for their church now in course of erection. The chime is associated with an old Irish manor house, the name of which has not been disclosed for close on a century.

The original owner, an ardent lover of music, had the bells erected in a specially constructed belfry and the chimes pealed forth at his whim.

After his death they remained silent, and their existence was almost forgotten.

THE SEALS OF OFFICE

The Taoiseach, Mr. Lemass, Minister for Supplies, and Mr. MacEntee, Minister for Industry and Commerce, were received by the President at Arus an Uachtarain yesterday. Mr. MacEntee surrendered to the President his Seal of Office as Minister for Industry and Commerce, and received from him his Seal of Office as Minister for Local Government and Public Health. Mr. Lemass received from the President his Seal of Office as Minister for Industry and Commerce.

COURT AND PERSONAL

The King, at Buckingham Palace, yesterday received in audience Captain D. Margesson, Secretary for War, and Sir Noel Charles on his appointment as Ambassador to Rio de Janeiro.

The Queen, who has been visiting her father, the Earl of Strathmore, at Glamis Castle during the week-end, left yesterday. With her were the two Princesses.

The Polish, the American and the Russian Ambassadors were at the British Foreign Office, and had individual talks with Mr. Eden, the Foreign Secretary, yesterday.

The Duchess of Kent, attended by the Lady Hubert, last week inspected units of the Women's Royal Naval Service on the east coast.

Lady Newtown-Butler has given birth to a daughter at Cedar Court Nursing Home, Sutton, Surrey.

The French Minister, M. Laforcade, called yesterday on the Lord Mayor at the Mansion House.

Mr. Stephen J. Shuttack, accompanied by his wife and two children, has left Dublin by air for London, where he is taking up a post in the Secretariat of the American Legation. He was seen off at the airport by Mrs. F. H. Styles, wife of the American Consul-General; Miss Hazel Millar, Mr. Pat Dowling and Miss J. Farrelly.

The Lord Mayor (Alderman P. S. Doyle, T.D.) called yesterday on the Royal Yugo-Slav Consul, Mr. Victor G. Davey, at 168 Fade street, Dublin.

THEATRE ROYAL

"Hullabaloo, No. 6," at the Theatre Royal this week, is an excellent show. John Torney, the noted operatic tenor, is in fine voice, singing operatic selections. Liam O'Connor sings some Irish ballads quite pleasantly, and a most amusing turn is given by The Hayeses. Harry Bailey and Hullabaloonists are in their usual good form, and their burlesque of "East Lynne" is very good. The Two Maureens sing and dance excellently. Jimmy Campbell and the Theatre Royal Band, Gordon Spicer at the organ, and the Royal Violettes contribute to a very well-balanced programme.

GAIETY THEATRE

"So What?" the latest revue presented by Jimmy O'Dea and Harry O'Donovan, "has everything," so it is not surprising to find it drawing large audiences to the Gaiety Theatre for the third successive week. While comedy is the leading suit in this production, music-lovers will be more than satisfied with May Devitt, a young tenor from Derry named Joseph McLaughlin, and Jack Maguire, a talented violinist. Those who like dancing will like Mary Poswolsky. "The Princess and the Boatman" fantasy which she puts on with her partner is one of the best presented ballet episodes seen in Dublin for some time. Joan Reddin is an excellent song-comedienne, and the only criticism which might be laid against her is that she is inclined to overstress her personality to a slight, but unnecessary, degree.

QUEEN'S THEATRE

There was no falling-off in appreciation by last night's audience when that amusing production, the "Queen's Jesters," entered its third week. There are thirty-four items in this laughter-provoking show, the principal jester being, of course, Frank O'Donovan. This comedian of proved ability is supported by an equally amusing trio—Noel Purcell, Jimmy Harvey and Dick Forbes.

OLYMPIA

A harmonica player of unusual ability, Joe Darby, gave an excellent programme of contrasting items, ranging from Ravel's "Bolero" to modern dance music, and was warmly applauded at the Olympia Theatre last night. This week's programme, a road show, with the title, "Legs and Laughter," is an entertaining presentation, and also includes in the cast The Two Carletons, who have frequently broadcast and made numerous records; the Barry Olympic Girls, and Leslie St. Clair and his Magical Maids.

NO NEWSPAPER MEN ON PRINCE OF WALES

In view of statements which have received currency in London, the British Ministry of Information desires to state that no English newspaper had any representative on board the Prince of Wales. Two well-known authors, representing the Ministry of Information, were on board for the purpose of making a historic record for future publication.

LONDON LETTER

59 FLEET STREET, LONDON,
MONDAY NIGHT.

MR. CHURCHILL arrived in Britain this morning after the visit to President Roosevelt, and it is expected that he will take an early opportunity of telling the people of much that has happened during the past few days. He may save the more important news for the House of Commons when it resumes its sittings, but there are the broader aspects of the meeting which can be given to the public. The public know very little about the meeting, where it took place, and how it was arranged, and it is possible that these are little details which can be given to the public without breaking any secret arrangements. In any case, the British people are very glad to hear that Mr. Churchill is safely home again after an eventful visit overseas.

Thailand

Whether Thailand is in any danger from invasion by the Japanese is uncertain, but, in any event, the country is not altogether unarmed. Every able-bodied man has to serve two years with the colours, and the army comprises twenty-six infantry battalions, four cavalry regiments, one A.A. regiment, nine groups of artillery and two of engineers. There is an air force of five wings, and its navy includes two river gunboats, three sloops, one destroyer and a number of smaller sea-going craft. The mouth of the Menam River is strongly fortified, and a bar prevents the entry of any vessel over 18 feet draught. The principal aerodrome is at Bangkok, and there are others of less importance.

Air Services

The war interfered with the development of commercial air transport to the United States, but the experience gained during the early days of the movement has proved to be of considerable value, and will be so again in more normal days. At present there is a great traffic across the Atlantic, and every day sees the arrival here or in the United States of important people. These flights, once regarded as dangerous, are now taken as ordinary routine performances, and it has become apparent that a new era in ocean flight has been launched. Practical proof that the air service can be safe and reliable has been given, and, while there may be occasional accidents, such as those of last week, it is already apparent that with peace a regular air service to the United States will be put into operation without delay.

Week-end Traffic

Railway passenger services will be greatly reduced during the coming winter, so that the goods traffic, particularly that for coal, may have every opportunity of meeting demands. Passengers who now find that trains are uncomfortably crowded will experience more discomfort if the intentions of the railway managers are carried out. One of these days there may be a prohibition on all travel for pleasure, a not unnatural idea when business is such an urgent matter. The railways could tell some interesting and enlightening stories of the present week-end traffic in all directions.

Children Return

Four hundred and sixty Council schools re-opened in London to-day to take in the many thousands of children who still remain here. It is the first time that re-opening has been in mid-August, but this does not apply to the evacuated children, as they are getting the usual four weeks' holiday. These number about a quarter of a million, but it is noted that every week the registers of the London schools carry nearly two thousand additional names—those of children who have been brought back to their homes. The Council officials say that this continual interruption of school routine is bound to put these children far behind the standard attained by those who have remained in the country. There were eighty thousand children in London last November, but to-day there are one hundred and forty-three thousand.

Narva—A Border Town

A correspondent writes:—

When I read that Narva—the town on the Russian-Estonian frontier—had been the scene of heavy fighting, it stirred memories. For in the 1920s I had used this gateway into Russia.

Nothing could have appeared less warlike than Narva at that time. It seemed to consist of a cluster of houses, a crowded market place, and a picturesque church, with a graceful Eastern dome.

In the market-place—in front of the church—hundreds of women, huddled in shawls, squatted on the ground, each with her wares in front of her—a few eggs, a little butter or cheese, a small basket of fruit.

All the money was paper, and I handed one woman a tattered dirty note. In return she picked up a basket of red berries and gave it to me along with a handful of still more delapidated notes. I went through this swarming market-place accumulating money and goods.

From Narva, via Leningrad, the journey to Moscow took about three days on the train. Wood was being used for the engine, and at night the train went through dark woods with sparks flying on each side—like a fiery dragon. The train was slow, but, if the Germans could only make the same time from Narva to Moscow, they would have some reason to be pleased.

Courtesy in Ireland

A friend has been discussing with me the truly momentous question: whether more or less courtesy is shown and observed in the ordinary every-day life of the country than, shall we say, ten years ago.

Her views were simply devastating. Many men, and chiefly the younger brand, she said, no longer do the right thing by removing cigarettes or pipes from their lips when speaking; they stand carelessly about, hands in pockets, as if they were just decorating the countryside and, generally, those of whom she spoke showed so little intelligent appreciation of conversation that she wonders how they hope to make a way through the world.

If you think that she is a disgruntled spinister with chilblains, you are doubly wrong; she is happily married with a houseful of children. She did not give me her views because she wanted to get something off her mind.

I have been making a little check-up on the female sex since I was shattered out of my complacency. Without wishing to be unchivalrous, may I record that when I had opened a fairly heavy door for ten women I had received the thanks of only one? The others, of course, may have thought that I was a paid door-keeper!

Irish Sugar

With the rationing of sugar in this country and the fact that the ration is really a generous one, we may well feel thankful that this important ingredient is made in Ireland. More than half a century ago this was written:—

"A new Irish industry is mooted in London, this being the cultivation of sugar beet, for which the soil of this country is admirably adapted; but, while there is nothing particularly new in this idea, there is certainly something catching in the proposal to follow up the growth of beet by the manufacture of sugar.

"By all means let us make trial of this industry, which only requires the erection of mills and refineries to ensure success in a financial way. The prospects of sugar manufacture in Ireland would now be much improved, inasmuch as, by the arrangements entered into by Congress a couple of weeks ago, European States will be precluded from paying a bounty on the export of this article."

Baron von Trutzchler

People in this country who remember Baron von Trutzchler will regret to hear that he died in England some time ago.

The Baron, who was well known both here and in England, was living near Chester when war was declared. He had been in Canada, buying cattle for the British Government, shortly before the big round-up of aliens in England. Through a mistake he was rounded-up, too, and interned, but was released shortly afterwards. He later contracted pneumonia, from which he never fully recovered.

Baron von Trutzchler led a most eventful life. He came to England as quite a young man, and he must have hunted with all the big packs there in his time. He had a curious facility for knowing everything and everybody. While in England he met and married an Irishwoman. After long periods spent upon his family estate in Silesia he always returned to Cheshire. He fought, however, for Germany in the last war, and again returned to England when peace came, although he maintained his association with Germany until recent years.

At the time of his death the Baron was settled at Ashton-on-Hales, near Chester, where he carried on a milk production enterprise. It is some years now since he came to Ireland, but he always had a gradh for us, and liked to meet all his old friends at the Grand National.

AIR MAILS FOR THE NORTH

BRITISH MINISTER'S ANNOUNCEMENT

FROM OUR CORRESPONDENT.

BELFAST, Monday.

An air-mail service between Great Britain and Northern Ireland is to be re-established in the near future. This was disclosed by the Right Hon. W. S. Morrison, the British Postmaster-General, speaking at a joint meeting of the Council of the Chamber of Trade and the Council of the Chamber of Commerce in Belfast to-day.

Mr. Morrison had expressed a wish to meet representatives, and the meeting was accordingly arranged. He alluded to the difficulties and delays caused by the war, and said, with regard to Northern Ireland, he proposed, as soon as the technical details were complete, to institute an air-mail service from the rest of the United Kingdom to Northern Ireland. He also mentioned that a considerable amount of work had been done which would improve the telephone position very considerably between Northern Ireland and Britain.

HOARDING BLAMED FOR CARTRIDGE SHORTAGE

There is an artificial shortage of cartridges created by the greed of people who had the money to buy, and who bought them for hoarding, said an official of Irish Metal Industries yesterday to an Irish Times reporter who asked him if the grouse season would be affected by a shortage of cartridges.

The people who shoot grouse have the cartridges, so that the season should not be affected adversely, this official said. The man who wanted a couple of dozen could not get them, because Irish Metal Industries had rationed dealers, and the dealers had sold out in a hurry to people who had money to buy hundreds at a time. But the dealers had got the same supply as in the year before the war, and, perhaps, a little more. That had been the basis for the company's rationing system.

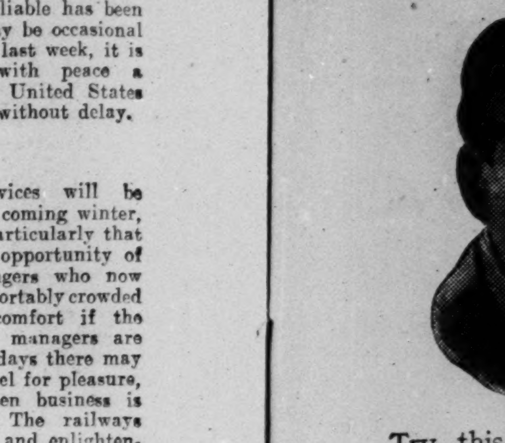

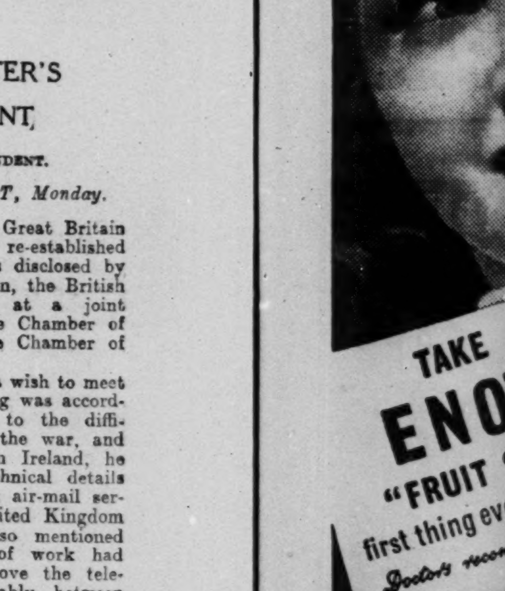

The fact is that the same number of cartridges is in the company this year as previously, and if the small man cannot get them it is because the big man is hoarding.

Smokers' 'Fur'

How to detect it—
How to prevent it

Try this now. Run your tongue round your mouth—do you notice it . . . a rough woolly feeling. Smokers' fur has got a hold, and is staining your teeth. But don't worry, you can stop this fur from ruining the look of your teeth.

Protect Teeth with new toothpaste containing *'MILK OF MAGNESIA'

Dentists know smokers' fur is caused by excess acid in the mouth. Kill the acid and you shift the fur. What is the scientific way to destroy mouth acid? 12,000 dentists say 'Milk of Magnesia' is the most effective antacid known. They recommend smokers to use the toothpaste containing 'Milk of Magnesia'—the only toothpaste containing it—Phillips' Dental Magnesia.

Commence fighting mouth acid to-night. Get a tube of Phillips' Dental Magnesia and clean your teeth with it each night and morning. Then you'll feel the difference; no more morning mouth; no more stale breath. Instead you'll have teeth which look clean, feel clean, are clean; a sweet mouth to give new zest to smoking. A mouth that will say Good morning! and mean it.

G.S.R. EMPLOYES LOSE JOBS

ROTATIONAL SYSTEM REJECTED

The proposal for the adoption of a rotational system in the road transport shop of the Great Southern Railways at Broadstone has been rejected by the men, who are members of the National Union of Railwaymen. In consequence of this decision eight members of the National Union of Vehicle Builders were dismissed last Friday.

Mr. Thomas O'Hanlon, Irish Secretary of the dismissed men's union, stated that his union was in favour of "short time," or rotational working, rather than have men dismissed. He had requested the Department of Industry and Commerce to intervene on behalf of his members, but the Department seemed to think that they could not interfere. The G.S.R. Company had been unable to give the unions any guarantee that there would not be more dismissals.

JAPAN, RUSSIA AND U.S.

DEVELOPMENTS IN FAR EAST

Associated Press.

TOKYO, Monday.

INDICATIONS that a Russian Far-Eastern Army of some strength had been mobilised and stationed strategically along the border, plus the lengthy conference to-day between Mr. Joseph Grew, the U.S. Ambassador, and Admiral Toyoda, the Japanese Foreign Minister, emphasised the critical situation in the Far East.

The entire Japanese Press prominently displayed London reports that Generalissimo Chiang Kai-Shek intended to visit Moscow.

TRAVEL BANS

Increasing restrictions against ofreigners in Japan are disclosed in a Foreign Office notification advising the necessity of obtaining permission to leave the country, says Reuter's Tokyo Correspondent. Instead of notification to the police, it is now necessary to obtain permission from the Prefectural Governors, who may revise or prohibit departure plans at their own discretion. These restrictions are obviously directed against the British and Americans, as Axis subjects have no place to which they can go.

THREAT OF FORCE

A call to the Japanese Government to be watchful of any Anglo-American attempt to use Vladivostok as a base for encircling Japan is made in the Tokyo newspapers to-day. "We do not yet know," says the Kumin Shimbun, to what extent Russia will co-operate in practical moves with Britain and the United States, but the Japanese Government and people must watch the rapprochement between the three countries and prepare for the worst." The paper points out that U.S. war material reaching Vladivostok could be used against Japan, while the Chugai Shogyo speaks of the possibility of the United States trying to send supplies through Vladivostok to strengthen the Soviet Far Eastern Army. "Britain and the United States may be hoping for trouble between the Soviet Union and Japan, but it is doubtful whether Russia, in her present plight, dare risk a conflict with Japan," it comments.

The Nichi Nichi Shimbun says that if Britain and the United States are determined to obstruct Japan at every turn Japan will be obliged to surmount their obstructions by force.

"MINOR PROBLEMS"

"Two or three minor problems" remain to be settled regarding the Japanese troops sent to Indo-China, according to Major-General Sumita, head of the Japanese Military Mission in the French colony. He stated to-day that he would shortly discuss these problems, which include the allotment of defensive zones between the Japanese and French troops, with Admiral Decoux, the French Governor-General.

NO WAR MATERIAL

Referring to a Japanese report that trade negotiations are being resumed between Japan and Dutch East Indies, Batavia Radio stated:—"Japan is continually endeavouring to tone down the impression made by the democracies freezing measures when the Japanese occupied Indo-China. It goes without saying that all exports which would constitute material aid to Japan's war economy would not be in the interests of the Netherlands East Indies—and will, therefore, not take place."—(Reuter.)

MAY EXPEL CONSULS

Hints that the Government at Nanking may shortly order British and American Consular officials to leave territory under its jurisdiction, because the Government has not been recognised by Britain and the United States, are being given in Japanese circles in Shanghai, according to Reuter's correspondent at Vichy.

TO GO WITH U.S.

"Our country is a democracy—we believe in the democratic way of life, and we will, therefore, go with America in life or death," said Mr. Manuel Quezon President of the Philippine Islands, responding to nomination for re-election as President.—(Reuter.)

U.S. 'PLANES FOR BRITAIN

FERRY SYSTEM OF DELIVERY

Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Monday.

President Roosevelt stated to-day that the delivery of 'planes to the British Forces in the Middle East would be speeded through a ferry system conducted by Pan-American Airways, which would provide "direct and speedy delivery" of aircraft to critical points on the front.

Under the agreement the Pan-American system will ferry aircraft from the United States to West Africa, and then to the Middle East. The White House said that Government-owned 'planes operated by American personnel would be used, and the route would not traverse the war zone.

CLIMBED ON WING OF BURNING 'PLANE

A gallant but vain attempt to rescue two occupants of the British 'plane which crashed on a house at Balderton, Newark, on Saturday, was praised at the inquest yesterday on the two airmen and six children who were killed.

William Jutson, of Balderton, said that, hearing the crash, he went out and climbed on to a wing of the 'plane, which he had seen catch fire. "I managed to get as far as the pilot, who was in the cockpit. I got hold of his belt, but could not unfasten it. The 'plane by that time had got so seared I had to run back along the wing. Before I got clear the petrol tank exploded, and the next thing I knew I was in the street."

A verdict of accidental death was recorded, the Coroner complimenting Jutson on his efforts.

COMMUNITY KITCHENS—IX.

SOME IDEAS FROM BRITAIN

Cash-and-Carry Kitchens

By an "Irish Times" Special Commissioner.

THE problem of community kitchens is not peculiar to this country. It exists in Great Britain, though for a different reason, and has been tackled on a broad scale in that country. The experience gained can be used with advantage over here, and I propose to devote to-day's article to the English schemes.

For the basis of this survey I have to thank an admirable little booklet, "Community Feeding in War Time," published by His Majesty's Stationery Office at ninepence, and well worth the money to anyone who takes the problem seriously.

The booklet deals very largely with centralised feeding, which is essential under present-day conditions in Britain. We are concerned with centralised cooking, the meals being eaten at home; but a lot can be learned from "Community Feeding in War Time," which was designed primarily to assist members of Women's Voluntary Services, an organisation of which there is no Irish counterpart.

The "attack" on the problem in Britain differs widely from our own, since no national approach to it has been made here—as yet. In November, 1940, the Ministry of Food announced that it would reimburse local authorities for any approved capital expenditure in connection with the equipment of feeding centres—the equipment becoming, of course, Government property. The Ministry considered that the centres should be self-supporting, but added that unavoidable and unforeseen losses would be reimbursed. Local authorities were advised to avail themselves of the assistance of voluntary organisations—and the National Council for Social Service and Women's Voluntary Services got together to co-ordinate the voluntary effort. Community feeding in Britain was established primarily for the evacuees, but it has now been extended to cover all categories of the population.

PREMISES

Premises suggested for kitchens are domestic science centres, schools, clubs and works' canteens, but in every case there must be provision for cooking with coal and wood, as gas and electricity canot be relied on. (I discovered only one Dublin centre which does not rely on gas, but another is installing an anthracite cooker as a stand-by.) Whenever possible, premises which have a backyard, where a field kitchen could be erected to enable the centre to be expanded in an emergency, should be selected.

Small "cash and carry kitchens" can be very simply established with a field kitchen unit, consisting of a field range, boilers and the necessary cooking utensils. In the larger type of centre, however, where meals are served for consumption on and off the premises, separate service should be provided for the two types of customers. The need for making the dining-room attractive is stressed—and I commend the idea to feeding centres over here: drabness is redolent of charity of the 19th-century type, a kind of charity which is best forgotten. Nesting chairs (which can be stacked in a small space) are recommended, but where benches are used they should have backs—here, again, centres in this country might take a note that it is both tiring and uncomfortable to eat a meal while seated on a narrow backless form. Tables should be in small units, so that they can be joined together to form long tables or used separately to fill odd spaces—each person requires 1 ft. 6 inches of table space. Cafeteria service is advised as it removes the need for diningroom help on a big scale; customers collect their own meals, and when finished return their dirty utensils to another section of the service counter.

EQUIPMENT AND STAFF

Plans for the kitchens are most important to us, and the following primary equipment is recommended:—

Cooking range and boiler—heated by solid fuel;

Water heater—heated by coke;

Water storage tank—to provide a reserve in case the normal supply is temporarily cut off;

Sinks—separate sinks for washing-up and for the preparation of vegetables;

Cupboards and shelves;

Kitchen table or work-bench;

Salvage bins—separate receptacles for food scraps, vegetable waste, bones, tins, paper and burnable rubbish. (Maybe the Dublin Corporation will realise one day that there is money in salvage work).

The charge for a hot two-course meal in the English centres ranges from 6d. to 10d., a child's meal costing 3d. or 4d. We are concerned with meals on a cheaper basis, because Dublin has to cater for a different public, but I think it worth adding that the cost of food in these centres varies between 48 and 60 per cent. of the receipts; the estimated average cost of light and fuel is ¼d. per cooked meal.

Staff for a community kitchen, catering for 200-300 meals per day, would be as follows: Paid—cook, kitchen assistant, two or three cleaners; unpaid—two assistant cooks, two kitchen assistants, three service-counter hands, one ticket-selling assistant, two dining-room assistants (the latter are only necessary where meals are being consumed on the premises). The ticket-selling assistant is advisable, because it is speedier to take the customer's money at the entrance, giving in exchange a ticket to be "cashed" at the service counter. In addition to this staff the booklet suggests that an administrative head is necessary to undertake the management of the kitchen, and recommends that Domestic Science teachers would prove useful in this capacity.

"BRITISH RESTAURANTS"

The title, "Community Feeding Centre," has been found to have little attraction across the Channel, and for that reason the Minister of Food (Lord Woolton) calls them "British Restaurants." I leave you to work out the name of your own Parish Kitchen for yourself, but don't let the name stop you going ahead.

Space is also devoted to emergency feeding (after an air raid), but I do not propose to go into that in the present series. The Irish Red Cross Society, I understand, has plans for emergency feeding at rest centres for the first couple of days after an air raid; after that, presumably, the job of feeding the homeless would be anybody's—unless, of course, the Government decides to intervene. It should be the work of community kitchens, whether voluntary or State-planned, but unless plenty of them are established in Dublin a lot of people will go hungry.

Considerable attention is given to detailing equipment, but any resourceful housewife can give you ideas on this question. Diet, too, is considered at some length, but as that is a specialised subject, we will leave it over for discussion to-morrow.

IRISH AND ENGLISH CONTRASTS

WOMAN WRITER'S VIEWS

MISS DOROTHY MACARDLE, interviewed in her Dublin hotel yesterday, said that she had come back to Eire to study the situation here, as she was so frequently questioned about it in England. Her work there has brought her into contact with refugees from many nations. Many of these, and notably the Jewish refugees, are deeply interested in this country.

She has much enjoyed helping to run a school where Belgians, French, Dutch and Polish exiles studied English in preparation for taking posts.

"It was delightful to return to Ireland," she continued. Here she found a lively, if detached, interest in world affairs.

In contrast with England, where, in spite of their boundless optimism, people showed signs of physical strain, she found the atmosphere in Dublin full of freshness and vigour.

It was pleasant to see the city full of children—in London one scarcely sees any now except in the poorer parts. The Dublin children struck her, however, as looking under-nourished.

IRISH MEDICAL UNION CHANGES TITLE

The Irish Free State Medical Union (I.M.A. and B.M.A.), 95 Merrion square, Dublin, recently sought, and have obtained, the sanction of the Minister for Industry and Commerce to have its registered title changed. This body will in future be known as "Cumann Dochtúirí na h-Eireann, the Medical Association of Eire (I.M.A. and B.M.A.). The address of the office will continue to be 95 Merrion square, Dublin, and the change of title does not affect either the officials or personnel of the Central Council.

Robert Montgomery, the film actor, who is now a United States Naval Attaché in London, with the rank of Lieutenant, was in Belfast yesterday. He called on the American Consul in Belfast, and intends to visit Derry. He may also travel to Dublin before his return.

METHODIST CHURCH

REPAIR OF CHURCHES AND MANSES

A special meeting of the Standing Committee of the Methodist Church in Ireland—to which, in additon, all the chairmen of districts were summoned—was held in the Centenary Church, St. Stephen's Green, Dublin, on the 15th inst. The President, the Rev. John N. Spence (Belfast), presided. There was a large and representative attendance. The report of a sub-committee which had considered various applications from circuits was presented by the hon. secretary, Mr. A. M. Fullerton, O.B.E., and approved. Permission was given for expenditure in connection with a number of churches and manses, including the following:—Maryborough, £150; Sandymount Lecture Hall, £100; Springfield Church, £45. Permission was also given for the carrying out of work in connection with Borrisokane Manse, Monaghan Church and Manse, and Ligoniel Church, Belfast. Legal matters affecting certain properties were considered and dealt with, and a special conditional grant to the Waterford Circuit was approved.

The Committee considered the financial problem created by the destruction of Church property in Northern Ireland. It was decided that for the present all such matters should be dealt with by the Standing Committee.

A large and important sectional committee was appointed to consider educational matters, secular and religious. The Rev. R. Lee Cole, M.A., B.D., and Mr. A. M. Fullerton, O.B.E., were appointed conveners of this committee.

The greater part of the time of the committee was given to the consideration of the spiritual work of the Church during the coming connexional year. In spite of all the difficulties of the times, the Churches in Great Britain are joining together in an earnest effort for spiritual advance, and it is strongly felt throughout Irish Methodism that Ireland should not lag behind in this matter. District Conventions are being arranged to be held in October. Most, if not all, of them will be visited by the President of the Church and by the Rev. Colin A. Roberts, one of the home missionary secretaries of British Methodism. A small committee was appointed to work out the details, the Rev. John England being the convener.

The new Methodist church at Drimnagh, Dublin, which is to be opened towards the end of September, is rapidly nearing completion. It is built on a new design, and has been greatly admired by all who have seen it. Towards the total cost of £3,000 subscriptions amounting to £2,400 have been promised or paid, leaving only £600 still to be secured to open the church free of debt. The Rev. Johnstone Hunter, Superintendent of the Dublin Central Mission, George's Hall, South Great George's street, Dublin, has this matter in hands.

The President of the British Conference (the Rev. Walter H. Armstrong) has kindly consented to be one of the speakers at the home missionary demonstration at next Conference. Mr. Anthony Cowdy, of Drogheda, will preside.

Mr. Hugh Turtle, who has been unanimously chosen to fill a vacancy on the Belfast Harbour Board, is one of the best-known members of the Methodist Church in Ireland, and is deeply interested in its work.

AXIS RAIDS ON TOBRUK

BERLIN, Monday.

German and Italian dive-bombers yesterday carried out two attacks on Tobruk Harbour, according to the official German News Agency. It adds that "great devastation was caused to jetties and warehouses, and several big fires were observed."—(Reuter.)

The British report from Cairo mentions only patrol activity, "inflicting losses on th

ABBEY THEATRE

"REMEMBERED FOR EVER"

"A FLAG, an audience and someone who was unlucky enough to die for Ireland," embodies the philosophy of Mr. Bernard McGinn's first play, "Remembered for Ever," which was performed yesterday at the Abbey Theatre.

Mr. McGinn writes of the new Ireland with disillusionment and satire, as well as real sincerity. His theme depends on the erection of a statue to Richard Brosnan, who died a patriot's death in Black and Tan days.

But Brosnan is alive, is known as Kelly, and is unemployed in a Dublin tenement. He hears of the Brosnan Memorial Committee. Its treasurer is his landlord, who threatens to evict the living Brosnan, and is in no way softened by hearing that his tenant was an old comrade of the dead hero. And the Brosnan Committee Chairman, the Rev. Kearney, P.P., is Brosnan's greatest enemy of the old days.

Brosnan's future son-in-law sees a good thing in the statue affair for the workless, one-time volunteer, but Brosnan himself, after a night-long struggle with voices of the mind, decides to see the statue's unveiling for other reasons. There the great "debunk" scene takes place. It is also the best scene in the play. Its crescendo brings both the dramatic force and the emotion of the author to its height. Brosnan faces the men who claim to have made a reality of his ideal. In order to unmask them he is driven to reveal himself as Richard Brosnan. With shouts of "hallucinations," "lunatic" in his ears he retracts. But the sergeant who is summoned to arrest the disturber recognises Brosnan.

The curtain of Act 2 falls on Brosnan's single moment of gaity and triumph—a shake-hands with the vindicating guard, his old comrade.

And to narrate more of the plot is no business of a critic.

Some dragging of the early portion of the play makes itself the more felt because here is a hurried tempo—the tempo set by someone who is bursting with things to say. He never allows his play to slacken again—not even after its highest point is reached in the shake hands. It is a play written about idealism by an idealist.

The actors gave of their best. W. O'Gorman was a delight as the treasurer. Denis O'Dea played Brosnan with sensitiveness, Liam Redmond making an excellent contrast as his son-in-law.

Mr. McGinn said, in response to "encores," that there were so many Brosnans in Ireland that O'Casey should have dealt with them. He thanked Frank Dermody, the producer, and the actors.

Another of Pond's lovely powders specially blended to give perfect skin-matching to the light and medium Brunette—beautifully fine, this powder cannot cause skin clog and it will stay on in the warmest weather or through the longest dance. Like all Pond's powders it is quite non-detectable and gives an exquisite soft bloom to the skin.

It is well to remember that though all powders look much alike in a box, Pond's have the secret which gives perfect skin-matching. Two hundred beautiful girls had their skin analysed by means of the colourscope. The information derived from this remarkable research enabled Pond's to incorporate the exact natural tints in each of their six shades.

GERMAN PATROL VESSELS SUNK

RAIDS ON LILLE AND BRITTANY

A British Air Ministry communiqué last night stated:—

"Blenheim aircraft of the Bomber Command this afternoon bombed and sank three enemy patrol vessels off the Dutch coast.

"Two attacks on objectives in Northern France were made by other Blenheims, which were accompanied by strong fighter escorts. An industrial plant at Lille, and other targets, were bombed. The fighter escorts destroyed three enemy fighters.

"Other fighters carried out a sweep over the coast of Northern Brittany, and attacked an aerodrome and enemy troops with cannon and machine-gun fire.

"From these operations three of our aircraft—all fighters—are missing."

EDUCATIONAL FILMS IN SCOTLAND

(By Our Cinema Correspondent)

In the Irish Film Society's headquarters, at 5 North Earl street, last night, I heard a most interesting lecture on "The Development of the Educational Film in Scotland." The lecturer, Miss McGinley, is a prominent figure in Scottish educational cinema circles and a producer of educational films.

According to her statistics—of which I am glad to say there were not very many—Scotland seems to be a great deal better off in respect of educational films than one would have imagined.

As well as a survey of Scottish methods, Miss McGinley gave us some of her theories on the cinema as a means of education, pointing out, for example, that all educational films should be silent, partly because they are cheaper and partly because silent films enable the teacher to comment on the film and rather than an impersonal announcer with a tendency to be flippant. Educational films, she felt, should be short, simple and in good taste.

Her talk was illustrated by four examples of educational films, including a delightful coloured film, "In the Zoo."

Cod Liver Oil in Sugar-coated Tablets

Sickly, skinny, nervous, overworked men and women get stronger, healthier, more vigorous and put on needed weight in a few days just by taking JESSELS COD LIVER OIL EXTRACT TABLETS. They are as tasty as sweets. Everybody knows that Cod Liver Oil is a wonderful vitalizer, health producer and flesh creator, because it contains more than any other food the essential vitamins A and D. But the oil itself is sickening, has a nauseating smell, and is indigestible, so Doctors everywhere now prescribe JESSELS COD LIVER OIL EXTRACT TABLETS, because they replace the oil to advantage. Remember if you (or yours) do not put on at least 5 lbs. in 30 days your money will be refunded in full by Jessels Products, Ltd., 31 Wicklow Street, Dublin.

Sold only by Chemists at 1/3 and 3/- per box.

BELFAST CIVIC REFORMS

COUNCIL RESCINDS ITS DECISION

FROM OUR CORRESPONDENT.

BELFAST, Monday.

The decision of the Corporation to rescind the proceedings of 6th August gave him much relief and satisfaction, because he might be saved from having to initiate legislative and administrative action, which the situation and public opinion demanded, stated the Minister of Home Affairs in Northern Ireland, Sir Dawson Bates, in a letter addressed to the Lord Mayor of Belfast in regard to the special meeting of the Corporation which was summoned to reconsider the developments that arose from the findings of the Ministry and the "Big Six" Special Committee after the Whiteabbey Sanatorium inquiry.

The decision to restore the Special Committee to pursue their labours, said the Minister, was cogent evidence that the Corporation was eager and willing to be the prime movers in its own reform. The proposal to enlarge that Committee had caused him great disquietude, and, if carried into effect, would have serious consequences.

The special meeting of the Corporation was called for 12 o'clock by the Lord Mayor in response to a requisition signed by 33 members, who desired that the resolution passed at the monthly meeting discharging the "Big Six" Committee be rescinded and the report of the Committee adopted.

At 11.50, however, a conference of members of the Corporation was held. It was then revealed that the Lord Mayor had received the letter from the Ministry of Home Affairs. There was a debate lasting for over an hour.

Councillor Wm. Dowling, M.P., and those who had voted for his amending motion retired for a consultation, while other members discussed the situation in the Council Chamber.

At first it was stated that there was little hope of agreement, but wiser counsel prevailed. Shortly after it was announced that the special meeting was in progress, and the Press were admitted.

When the rescinding motion was moved by Councillor Dowling, and seconded by Councillor Armstrong, and agreed to, the Lord Mayor said it was "the best day's work they ever did."

12,169 CATTLE SLAUGHTERED

DISEASE TOLL IN THREE COUNTIES

District Justice O'Shea, at Muinebeag, imposed a fine of £30, with eight guineas costs, on Jeremiah Clowry, Craananona, Leighlinbridge; also fines, totalling £9, with ten guineas costs, on John Farrell and James Farrell, Tomnasack, father and son, in prosecutions for breaches of the Foot-and-Mouth Regulations.

Mr. G. D. Murnaghan, who appeared on behalf of the State, said that up to last Wednesday there had been 146 outbreaks of the disease in Kilkenny, 101 in Tipperary, 20 in Carlow, which necessitated the slaughter of 12,169 cattle, 3,544 sheep, 1,413 swine, and 318 goats. He was instructed to say that the Minister was not yet satisfied with the situation in regard to the disease being got under control.

TRANSPORT COMPANY DISMISSALS

Further dismissals of employés of the Dublin United Transport Company took place yesterday, due, it was stated, to redundancy. Owing to the curtailment of services, it was learned that almost 100 hands were at the dépots during the week-end, and had no work to do.

TUBERCULOSIS LIKELY TO INCREASE

INADEQUATE FACILITIES FOR TREATMENT

WARNING that an increase in tuberculosis rates is "certainly most likely," as the present European War proceeds, is given by Dr. J. A. Musgrave, County Louth medical officer of health, in his report for 1940, which has just been released.

If the people are subjected to any serious shortage of food, says Dr. Musgrave, an increase in the rate is "very nearly inevitable," for there is no doubt that the psychic state influenced the bodily health.

Even if this country was not at war and was not short of food the anxiety strain, owing to uncertainty, geographical position and bitter conflicting opinions, might well be greater than existed in the countries of belligerents, and might demonstrate itself in our disease rates.

RATE ALREADY INCREASED

The rise which was evident in the returns for 1940 as compared with 1939 might be the start of a war increase, says the report, but it was not necessarily so. It might merely be the adjusting swing which usually occurred after a year or a series of years, giving very low rates, and 1939 recorded the lowest rate ever returned in Louth. Further, the general death rate of Louth during 1940 also showed an increase, apart from the increase in tuberculosis. The net increase in the death return was from 854 in 1939 to 950 in 1940.

The general trend of the decline in rates, however, appeared moderately satisfactory, but it was disconcerting to note that the "other forms" of tuberculosis remained nearly stationary, and, unlike the "pulmonary" rates—which have shown a general steady decline for 60 years—showed no comparative steady decline.

Dr. Musgrave said that he was confident that the strenuous and well-controlled work which the veterinary inspectors were carrying out under the Milk and Dairies Act, 1935, would in the course of a year or so—ceteris paribus—bear fruit.

SPECIAL SCHEME WANTED

Continuing, he writes that the bed state, both within and without the county, available for the treatment of tuberculosis was inadequate. Other things being equal, the institution of more facilities for the treatment of tuberculosis was an excellent scheme. However, the rates would not be cut down by any brick-and-mortar policy alone. More medical staff, more food and better living conditions were the primary necessity. Better living conditions required—chiefly affected the poorer classes — more leisure for exercise, study and amusement was indicated.

In this regard Dr. Musgrave suggested that swimming pools, dance halls, libraries, communal restaurants, cinemas, etc., should be within the reach of all pockets. The Army provided all facilities for recreation and a fully healthy life, and from this point of view alone any hygienist in his opinion must favour conscription as the surest and sanest form of State controlled health propaganda.

A GOOD STAFF ESSENTIAL

Building a sanatorium or tuberculosis hospital without first having appointed an Assistant County Medical Officer of Health and Superintendent County Sanitary Inspector, to permit ordered and well-founded expansion of the County Department of Health, was wrong. He had always emphatically stated this opinion, and had also pointed out that the overloading of the medical staff of his office could not make for good.

The corrected death-rate for the year 1940 for Louth County was 14.8 per 1,000 of the population, which tied another county for twenty-sixth lowest rate including county boroughs and cities—returned for Eire. The principal epidemic diseases mortality rate was 0.4 per 1,000, which gave Louth a tie with two other counties for twenty-fourth lowest place. The T.B. rate was 1.4, being 1.1 pulmonary T.B. and 0.3 for other forms.

IMMUNISATION

Dealing with the question of immunisation, Dr. Musgrave has prepared a table which shows that between 1928 and 1940 only one death occurred among immunised children before the expiration of the period necessary for immunisation to take full effect. No deaths occurred from diphtheria of children immunised against diphtheria where such deaths occurred after the expiration of the period necessary to confer immunity, but 85 deaths occurred among children who were not immunised.

The matter of immunisation against infectious diseases became doubly important when population was in a state of flux or was passing through a period of strain of any kind. The last three attempts to institute campaigns in Dundalk were not successful.

MARKET REPORTS AND PRICES

DUBLIN BETTER IN PLACES

G.S.R. DEB. AND GAS ISSUES ADVANCE

Public interest, which was only of moderate dimensions, on the Dublin Stock Exchange yesterday was mainly confined to local securities, and prices inclined higher in places on small support. Changes among British Industrials were rather irregular.

The Second National Loan advanced 10/- to 115½, and other Home Government Funds held steady. 3½ p.c. War Loan hardened a shade to 105. Corporation Stocks enjoyed support, and Dublin 3½ p.c. moved up to 100¾, while the 4 p.c. 1955/60 gained 10/- at 106.

Banks were featureless, apart from Royals, which dipped to 9. Guinness units met with further liquidation, and gave way to 82/-. Rails continued bright, and Great Northern Pref. improved to 21½, and Great Southern Deb. was raised to 46.

Dublin Transport Pref. shaded off to 23/3, Alliance Gas Ord. hardened to 20/-, and the Deb. spurted 27/6 to 99⅜. Cement Ord. rose to 31/3, and a few other Irish Industrials were dealt in at mostly steady levels.

Tobaccos advised better, with B.A.T. Ord. around 88/9 and Imperials 115/-. Coats Ord. tended higher to about 35/-, and Courtaulds added pence at 31/6. Dunlop Rubbers eased to 35/9, and Imperial Chemical Ord. to 31/9. Vickers Ord. firmed up to 16/3, and Woolworth Ord. quoted 58/6.

WALL STREET STEADY

RECOVERY FAILS TO HOLD

NEW YORK, Monday.

A recovery over a broad front, on the belief that the market was possibly oversold, failed to hold, and trading lost momentum. Long standing handicaps, such as taxes, price control, the Russo-German news and the tension in the Far East, continued.

The turnover totalled 400,000 shares, and of the 648 stocks traded, 321 advanced, 145 declined and 182 remained unchanged.

The market gained fractionally over a broad front during the morning, and the Steels and Aircrafts showed gains ranging to a point. At mid-day, nevertheless, the market was more hesitant. Aircrafts were bolstered by Boeing's first six months showing net earnings against a net loss for the corresponding period last year. Motors were steady, in face of fears of shortages of parts and restrictions on instalment selling. Rails were encouraged by plans for multiple loading and double capacity freight-cars. Shipbuilding, Mining, Copper and Farm Implement issues were among the narrow gainers.

The close was steady.—(Reuter.)

LONDON OPENS CHEERFULLY

BEST PRICES NOT MAINTAINED

The London Stock Markets started the week on a cheerful note, and at the beginning of the session yesterday prices showed an upward tendency. Business was on a fair scale but the actual volume did not entirely account for the gains which were established, and improved sentiment was, to a large degree, responsible for the advance in quotations.

A factor which assisted the markets was the belief that most of the £35,000,000 involved in the latest "call up" of Canadian stocks by the British Government would be available for reinvestment in the London Stock Markets.

In present conditions, and with the new agreement between the British Government and the railway companies likely to prove beneficial, British Rails also came into request.

Mining shares were helped by a revival of interest by the Cape. Best prices were not always maintained to the end, but, nevertheless, the general run of prices showed many gains on the day.

GAINS REDUCED

Among British Funds prices were marked higher at the opening of the session, but the firmness was not maintained till the close, and the recession which occurred in the early afternoon wiped out most of the gains. Local Loans were able to hold a gain of ¼, and India Threes also improved to the same extent. Old Consols were ¼ up at 81⅝ and 4 p.c. Consols improved ⅛.

British Rails opened a little higher than the level at which they stood at the close of business last week, and, though they were rather slow in getting into their stride, they moved up in several cases and were able to hold their firmness to the end. Great Westerns rose a point to 38½, and London Passenger Transport "C" stock jumped 2 points to 44. Gains of ½ were established by Southern Defd. Ord., L.N.E. 2nd Pref. and L.M.S. Ord. and 4 p.c. Pref.

Industrial and Miscellaneous descriptions opened with a fair promise of moving up, but business fell off, and at the finish, though the majority of the changes were upward, they were not of much importance.

NORTH BUYS COATS

In the Brewery market Guinness repeated 84/-. Bass improved 9d. and Watneys put on 3d. Imperial Tobaccos were in request and held their rise, closing 1/16 to the good at 5¾. "Bats" were maintained at 4⅜, business being only of moderate proportions.

Coats were bought from the North and advanced to 35 7½, a rise of 3d., while Courtaulds were 4½d. up at 32/-. Dunlop Rubbers were a trifle harder. International Teas also improved the turn, as did Levers at 25/10½, but Molasses eased the turn.

In the Stores group Woolworths added 9d. and Marks and Spencers put on 3d., with Harrods quoted ex div at 31/3.

Among Motors Fords shed 1½d., but Morris advanced 7½d. Triplex Glass came into favour and rose another shilling to 25/-. Steels were quietly irregular, with Vickers unchanged at 16/4½. United Steels eased a trifle, but Stewarts and Lloyds improved.

Oils were dull with Anglo-Iranians 1/3 off at 35/7½ and Burmahs 7½d. down. Mexican Eagles were the turn easier, and Trinidad Leaseholds failed to hold their ground.

PURCHASE OF 15,000 BLYVOORS

From the start of the day there was no doubt as to the course of prices in the Mining market being upward.

Cape investors were early in the market, and their influence was responsible for further gains in the shares which have been prominent recently. Blyvoors and West Wits were notable examples, and trading was active throughout the day. In Blyvoors it was reported that one deal on behalf of the Cape was a purchase of a line of 15,000 shares. The price eased a little just before the close, but the rise on the day was 1/3 at 24/9. West Wits also failed to hold their full rise, but finished ⅛ up at 4¾. Western Reefs were rather quieter, with no movement on the day, but Western Holdings hardened 3d. Libanons were another 9d. up, while Marievales recovered 3d. to 22/6. Sub Nigels were fractionally higher among the big Kaffirs, but Central Minings were easier.

A little late selling caused a fall of ⅛ in Rhokana, but other Rhodesians were maintained.

COMPANY NEWS

SOLUS OMITS BONUS

Solus, Teoranta, manufacturers of electric lamps, etc., is to pay the same dividend for the year ended June 30 but no bonus.

The report of the directors, published yesterday, shows that, after making provision for all applicable charges, including directors' remuneration, there is a profit of £16,642. This compares with £25,378 for the previous year and £20,436 for 1938-'39. Provision for depreciation is £5,463, against £5,275, and £6,000 (against £8,000) is provided for income tax and corporation profits tax. There is no transfer to general reserve, against £4,000 a year ago, and £500 is placed to staff fund, compared with £1,000.

The directors recommend a final dividend of 5 per cent., making 10 per cent. for the year on the "A" and "B" Ordinary shares, but there is no bonus, against 2½ per cent. bonus last year. The carry-forward is slightly lower at £1,496, against £1,785.

E. and J. Burke.—The profit and loss account for the year ended 30th April, 1941, shows that the profits of the parent company, including interest, dividends, rents and provisions no longer required, fell short of the full Debenture interest of £30,000 by £215. The profits of the subsidiary companies in the United States have not been included in the parent company's accounts. The volume of business and the profits of Cantrell and Cochrane, Limited, continue to be good, and it has paid satisfactory dividends. The volume of business of Export Bottlers, Limited, continues satisfactory, and dividends have been received. Taken collectively, the United States Companies showed profits before depreciation of £9,695 (against £5,150) for the year to the 31st October, 1940, and after providing for depreciation of £4,563 (against £2,616) on plant, there remained a net profit of £5,132 (against £2,534). The conversions into sterling have been made at 58 to the £ as hitherto. No dividends have been declared by the subsidiary companies pending dealing with depreciations on land and buildings accumulating to October, 1940, amounting to £14,314. It has been agreed between the revenue authorities of Eire and the United Kingdom that this company is controlled in the U.K., and must be subject to U.K. taxation instead of Eire taxation as hitherto. The company comes within the scope of U.K. excess profits tax, but whether any liability has arisen has not yet been ascertained.

A. F. Sherley.—Profit £15,528 (£3,725); Defd. dividend 26 p.c. (nil).

Beecham's Pills.—A new peak figure of profits of £1,085,893, comparing with £1,055,615 earned in the previous year. Dividend on the Deferred capital is unchanged at 28½ p.c.

Darjeeling Cons. Tea.—Dividend of 7½ per cent. (same).

Eno Proprietaries.—Gross dividends from subsidiaries, less exchange losses, interest, and expenses, amounted to £259,231 (against £289,690). No final dividend. Forward £36,065 (against £36,025).

Henry Boot.—Net loss £4,883, compared with a net profit of £58,905.

Kasintoe Rubber. — Profit £7,788 (against £5,790). Dividend 4 p.c. (same).

Macleans.—Trading profit £359,241 (against £420,899). Further dividend of 29½ p.c. has been declared, absorbing £138,937.

Metropolitan Electric Cable and Construction.—Profit £33,996 (against £34,326). Final dividend 5 p.c., making 7½ p.c. (same).

Prichard and Constance.—Net profit £28,775 (£29,307); Defd. dividend 72.8 p.c. (98 p.c.).

Timothy Whites.—Trading profits up by £19,588 to £393,129, but, owing to the higher rate of tax payable, the net profit is reduced by £27,873 to £157,651. The dividend on the Ordinary capital is maintained at 30 p.c. for the year, and a balance of £75,773 is carried forward, compared with £66,525 brought in.

Veno Drug.—Profit £275,190 (£405,411); Defd. dividend 122.9 p.c. (187.5 p.c.).

Yeast-Vite.—Profit £210,865 (£239,120); Ord dividend 52½ p.c. (60 p.c.).

NOW—A MEDICAL VIEWPOINT ON BEAUTY CULTURE

Beauty's 'IF'

YOUR FACE is your fortune IF your skin is lovely, and not unless—say the milkmaids of 1941! But seriously, opinions about beauty are changing very quickly these days. And have you noticed what is the lesson to be learnt? Admiration goes to the young woman with a natural, glowing loveliness of skin. Let your make-up be of the slightest. Look natural, and look after your skin.

If you asked your doctor ...

what is the substance he most often puts into prescriptions for the treatment of delicate skins, for the care of minor skin blemishes—he would say 'Calamine' every time. Calamine is constantly used by skin specialists. They find its soothing, gentle action invaluable. They recommend it for babies. They would tell you that if you searched the laboratories of the world you would find nothing safer or more beneficial as a beauty aid for your own skin.

Beauty Calamine is *Lacto-Calamine

Crookes' Lacto-Calamine contains Calamine in its purest form, and is prepared by a colloidal process in which the particles reach a state of *ultra*microscopic fineness attained by few beauty preparations. Afterwards scientifically combined with nourishing, emollient milk of almonds and soothing witch hazel, Lacto-Calamine is delicately soft and creamy, in a skilfully blending skin tone.

• • •

TWIN-PURPOSE. Let Lacto-Calamine look after your skin beauty day and night. It may be used as a powder base, but many people consider it unnecessary to powder over its lovely matt bloom. Last thing at night, smooth in its gentle milkiness. No more unflattering stickiness—your skin completely absorbs Lacto-Calamine.

Through the microscope

MONDAY
A micro-photograph showing a section of the skin of a girl's face magnified 104 times, before application of Lacto-Calamine. Neglect had caused skin roughness which appears as ridges.

WEDNESDAY
The same skin after two nights and one day of using Lacto-Calamine. Look at the micro-photograph now. It records no unevenness of the skin's surface, which is now fine and smooth.

Fynnon Salt shifted his Rheumatic Acids

After 3 days he was back at work

On the face of it this seems unbelievable—but you had better read the actual letter. Mr. Judge, writing from Lancashire, says: "I was in a terrible state for nine months, laid up in bed. Every limb was absolutely locked. My doctor stated I was a very bad case—no doubt I was. One day when our Insurance Inspector called he asked my wife if I was getting any better. She told him I was getting worse. He said 'Now, I have a wonderful cure.' He told my wife it was Fynnon Salt. She went and bought a tin and gave me some that day and the next. The following day I got up and came down and on the next day I was back at work. I am in better health now than I have been for years. I cannot speak too highly of Fynnon."

Get a large tin of FYNNON SALT to-day 1/6 at all chemists.

AILMENTS CAUSED BY RHEUMATIC ACIDS

EARLY SIGNS small twinges, tiny shooting pains, stiffness in the joints, muscles tender under pressure.

LEADING TO lumbago, sciatica, neuritis, muscular rheumatism, joint pains, gouty pains, continuous rheumatic pain spreading. If you have stiffness or pain which shows the presence of rheumatic acids go to your chemist—get a tin of Fynnon Salt NOW.

GRIMSBY FISH.—Haddock, sprags, codling, coalfish, cod, and catfish 8/- per stone with heads on; witches and hake, 16/6 per stone.

WOOL

BRADFORD.—Some spinners are showing exceptional keenness to obtain orders for export fabric trade. They evidently desire to put themselves in as strong a position as possible in view of pending negotiations in connection with concentration scheme. There is not a great deal of new business to be had. Existing contracts are well covered.

LONDON MONEY MARKET

There was some interest in Foreign Exchange circles about the appreciation in the Shanghai dollar, following operations by the Chinese Currency Stabilisation Board, but the bullion market was quiet. There was a very small trade demand for silver, and both the cash and forward quotations remained unchanged at 23 7/16d. per ounce.
